Boyd Stout, 21, is being held in the Pickaway-co jail charged with tampering with United States mail following his arrest at 8 p. m. Monday by U. S. Postoffice Inspector H. B. Dean of Chillicothe. According to post office authorities Stout, well known local young man, has confessed to tampering with mail.

Stout was arrested Monday evening when a trap which had been laid in the local post office since last Friday night materialized. George P. Foreman, S. Court-st. postmaster, had received several complaints recently that mail which had been put in the post office had not been reaching its destination. One instance of $45 in cash being placed in the post office was cited. Loan companies in the city had reported that payments in cash sent to them through the post office had never been received.

As a result of these numerous complaints Mr. Foreman began an investigation which resulted in the apprehension of Stout. Last Thursday night, after the severe electrical storm, Mr. Foreman said he saw a postoffice box open and observed that Stout had opened it. He then called Inspector Dean. Since last Friday Dean, Foreman and others had been waiting in the post office for their chance. Monday evening it came. Stout entered the post office, officials state, and went directly to one of the boxes from which mail was reported missing. He opened and extracted its contents, according to the authorities, and was ready to leave when placed in custody. Several envelopes were alleged to have been found in his pocket addressed to persons other than himself.

Post office officials would not disclose the names of the firms which have reported losses.
FORMER EMPLOYEE

Pickaway's Illiterates Total 1,869

Pickaway-co had 1,869 illiterates in 1930 according to a report made by the National Advisory Committee on Illiteracy, which has been received here. The state had 123,804 illiterates, the report showed.

The report covers all persons over 10 years of age who are unable to read or write. A study of the report shows that the highest number of illiterates is in the counties where the large cities are located and where much of the foreign-born population is located. Rich counties also have a higher number of illiterates than the poorer counties due to a larger tenant class on the farms.

According to statistics given in the report, Ross-co had 1,130 illiterates in 1930. Fayette-co had 335; Vinton had 218; Highland's illiterates numbered 275; Hocking-co had 332 and Pike-co's illiterate population was 582 persons.

The percentage of illiteracy in 1930 was 2.8 and it dropped in 1930 to 2.3. Of the state's 123,804 illiterates in 1930, 32,387 were foreign-born whites, 16,213 were negroes, and 1,073 were illiterates of other races.

G. W. Mathewson, alias F. E. Mathewson, which is thought to be his correct name, was arrested at 116 W. Rich-st, Columbus, Monday evening by Deputy Custer after a month's search. Custer had been tipped off sometime ago that Mathewson had been seen at this address, and with the aid of Columbus detectives caught him Monday and brought him here where he was placed in the county jail on a charge of fraud.

He visited this city sometime ago and sold Dr. C. C. Watts and Dr. E. J. Lilly alleged bogus insurance. He also sold Drs. Spindler, Rocky and Sexauer of Ashville. WORLD'S STOCK MARKETS RALLY

Moratorium on Reparation Payments Causes Enthusiastic Movement Throughout Several Nations Today, Prices in London, Paris and Berlin Advance Sharply In Response to Agreement.

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
LONDON, July 7.—An echo of the "Mad Monday" which followed President Hoover's original announcement proposing a moratorium on inter-government debt and reparations payments, sounded through the European stock exchange today as a result of the accord reached on that proposal.

Prices on the London, Paris and Berlin markets advanced sharply in response to the general optimism resulting from the agreement to suspend debt payments.

Trading on the London exchange was carried on at a brisk pace throughout the day. Prices opened fractionally higher and continued the climb as the trading session advanced. The American section of the stocks list was especially active on the up-side.

International Nickel shares were in good demand, while oils, mines and German bonds made substantial gains.

Prices boomed on the Berlin bourse, and the Paris market reflected the cheerful news given out last evening by Premier Laval. On the Berlin bourse the heavy industries made gains of 5 to 10 points and other shares trailed along in the wake of this advance.

The scarcity of call money and the high interest it commanded served as a check-rein to over-active bidding in Berlin.

The one exception to the European market zone was the Barcelona, Spain, bourse, which turned panicky following an announcement that an important bank in Catalonia province had closed its doors. The market movement in Spain had no relation to the remainder of Europe, however, as the Spanish markets have paid little or no attention to the course of the debt moratorium negotiations.

LONDON, July 7.—Excited buying of stock expressed the London stock exchange's enthusiasm for the Hoover moratorium today. Prices opened higher and continued to mount. The American section being especially active on the up-side.

STATEMENT MADE

The consensus of the city, or London's financial district, on the Hoover plan, was expressed by Lord Melchett, son of the famous chemical magnate who died recently, as follows:

"The settlement in Paris has lifted the unreasonable psychological gloom overshadowing the world. It will revitalize Europe and will create a minor gold boom through the cessation of the drift of industrial profits from Europe to the United States."

BERLIN, July 7.—Prices and trading on the Berlin bourse boomed today in response to the cheerful news that an agreement had been reached between France and America with regard to the debt moratorium.

Shares of the heavy industries soared from five to 10 points, despite the fact that call money remained scarce and commanded all the way from 8 1/2 to 10 per cent.

German bankers claimed a long term loan must be obtained to ease the shortage of money caused by the recent sensational withdrawals from the Reichsbank. They believed, however, that the run on the Reichsbank would cease as a result of the moratorium accord.

TACOMA, Wash., July 7.—Deep into the wastes of an icy crevasse of Mount Rainier, nearly 1,200 feet deep, a hardy group of searchers today hunted the body of Robert K. Zinn, 21-year-old Portland, Ore., mountain climber.

Zinn, son of the Rev. George S. Zinn, formerly of Galion, O., slipped and fell to a certain death yesterday from near the summit of Mount Rainier. He was one of a party of 12, which included his brother, Kenneth R. Zinn, when the accident occurred.

Three daughters, Misses Mary and Julia Tracy, at home, and Mrs. Dan Ryan, this city; a son, John B. Tracy, Chicago; 12 grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren survive.

The body may be viewed at the residence.

STATEMENT IS GIVEN
Proposal Is Put In Effect
From July 1

WASHINGTON, July 7.—President Hoover's project for one year's freedom from the world debt spectre, was today in effect to all intents and purposes as of July 1, as originally proposed.

The purpose behind the president's offer to suspend all war debts for a year on conditions that the other principle powers do likewise regarding German reparations, made two weeks ago last Saturday, had been accomplished. Already the psychological effect was achieved when the proposal was made. There were some minor depressions during the critical negotiations with the French, but with last night's momentous announcement that an accord had been reached. There was an immediate rebound.

The government is now out of the picture, according to an official high in the administration. Full fruition of the plan is now up to the treasury experts of the various signatories of the Young plan, who will be charged with ironing out conflicts between that instrument and the year's suspension program.

Of course always in the background are the parliaments of the nations involved. In some quarters it is felt they are very much in the picture. But in most there appears to be no apprehension on the score.

The accord reached by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Ambassador Edge with Premier Laval, which the president accepted last yesterday, represents some concessions both by the French and this government. None made by the United States, however, departed from the original principle laid down by the president that the holiday must be complete, and that no nation should benefit, at the expense of another.

Wider Road is Also, Asked in Petition Filed With County Commissioners Monday; Charge Bridges Are Rotten.

A petition bearing the names of 85 taxpayers of Monroe-tp was filed with the county commissioners Monday asking the construction of three concrete bridges and the widening of a road. The petition stated that the signers were interested in the Era-Five Points-pk and asked the commissioners to grant and construct a substantial concrete bridge across Burkirk's Run near the residence of John Clarridge. They asked the county to widen the road in front of the Clarridge house by moving the trees and changing the ditch on the north side of the road.

The signers also asked that a concrete bridge be constructed across the small stream just north of the R. T. Dennis residence and another be erected across the stream south of the old Greenland schoolhouse.

According to the petition these bridges are rotten, and as traffic is heavy here, improvement is necessary.

The commissioners asked County Engineer Sweetman to draw plans and specifications for the improvements.

Noon Day. Luncheon at Boggs Hotel on Friday

Plans were changed Monday evening at a meeting of the chapter of the National Aeronautical Association for the local Air Day to be held here on Wednesday, July 29.

Last year's Air Day was the first event of this nature ever staged by the local club and it was with much success that it was decided to give the people of this community another Air Show, and one on a larger and more interesting scale.

Last year's activities were confined more to acquainting the public with air travel and through the co-operation of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, the Ohio Division of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Club and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, persons to the air, many for the first time, and acquainted themselves with the most modern winged transportation of all times.

TO SEE AUTOGIRO
This year's show will be somewhat different nature and program contains more than the previous ones.

That is practically new to everyone. The same type of airplane made its first appearance at the National Air Races at Cleveland two years ago and since then has won international acclaim. The ship was invented by a Spaniard and developed by the Pittsburgh Aircraft Co. of Philadelphia. It is known as an Autogiro. It is one of the ordinary airplanes in that it uses only a small wing and revolving vanes to sustain lift.

William Maycock will give an exhibition of stunt flying using a four place Stinson cabin monoplane. Mr. Maycock is well known here and is remembered by everyone as the pilot who gave the "Pumpkin Show" crowds many thrills, and will give an exhibition of loops, spins, stalls and inverted flight.

The Curtiss-Wright Flying Service expects to have a ship of this type for demonstration purposes.

The exhibition in the afternoon activities hopes to draw more than 10,000 U. S. Army aviators from Wright Field to give the crowds an insight into the Army formation flying.

Boggs Hotel on Program

Plans were completed Monday evening at a meeting of local chapter of the National Aeronautical Association for the annual Air Day to be held here on Wednesday, July 29.

Last year's Air Day was the first event of this nature ever staged by the local club and it met with such success that it was decided to give the people of this community another Air Show, and one on a larger and more interesting scale.

Last year's activities were confined more to acquainting the public with air travel and through the co-operation of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, the Ohio Division of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, persons came to the air, many for the first time, and acquainted themselves with the most modern and speedy transportation of all times.

TO SEE AUTOGIRO

This year's show will be of a somewhat different nature as the program contains more thrills for the spectators. The Standard Oil Co. of Ohio will bring a ship here that is practically new to everyone. The same type of airplane made its first appearance at the National Air Races at Cleveland two years ago and since then has won international acclaim. The ship was invented by a Spaniard and developed by the Pitcairn Aircraft Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. and is known as an Autogiro. It differs from the ordinary airplane in that it uses only a small stub wing and revolving vanes to obtain lift.

William Maycock will give an exhibition of stunt flying using a four place Stinson cabin monoplane. Mr. Maycock is well known here and is remembered by everyone as the pilot who gave the 'Pumpkin Show crowds many thrills, and will give an exhibition of loops, spins, stalls and inverted flight.

The Curtiss-Wright Flying Service expects to have a ship on the field for demonstration purposes.

The committee in charge of the activities hopes to have at least two U. S. Army pursuit ships from Wright Field, Dayton, here to give the crowds an exhibition of the Army formation flying and stunting.

ASK MCKEE HERE

Plans are under way to hold a noon day luncheon at the Boggs Hotel with Lt. Frank M. McKee, State Director of Aeronautics, as principal speaker.

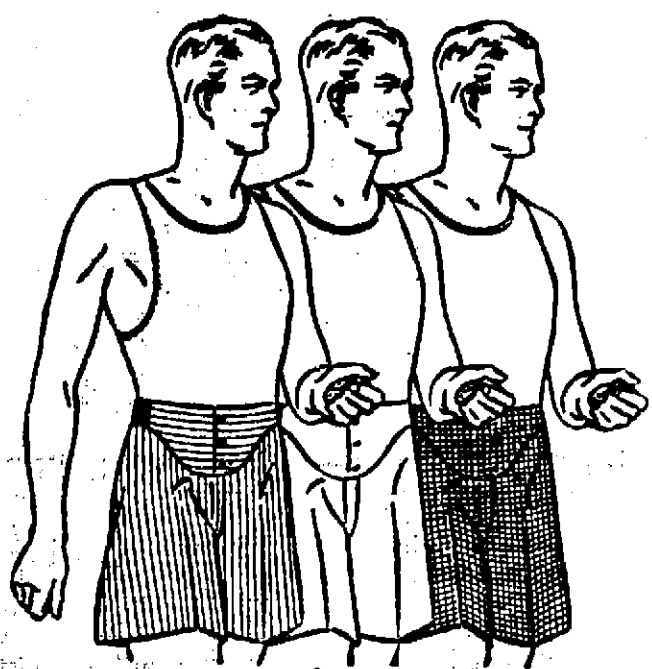

Invitations were extended to the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, and Kiwanis club to take part in this event, as they did last year, and help make this Air Day the most interesting event ever held in this part of the State.

RAT CAMPAIGN IS GIVEN PUBLICITY

"Circleville and the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau exert its influence throughout the entire world" according to a letter received from Meeker Terwilliger by Stanley Lewis county extension agent, from Vienna, Austria Tuesday.

The letter encloses a clipping from the Paris edition of the New York Herald which told the story of the rat extermination campaign carried on sometime ago by the farm bureau and a number of farmers.

The story as written by United Press stated, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin has nothing on the farmers of Circleville, for they recently staged a party which netted 1,200 rat skins." The article also told of the mixture of poison used in the extermination and the success of the campaign.

CLEVELAND "BREWS" ARE READY TO ACT

CLEVELAND, O.—A minimum amount of $10,000,000 is ready to be placed into circulation by Cleveland brewers for construction costs, and initial production costs if the new Congress modifies the Volstead act, making legal the manufacture, sale and transportation of 4 per cent beer.

Old-time brewers in this city are agreed on that figure as the lowest possible amount which would be released immediately upon receipt of word of modification. Discussing the outlook with these same brewers, it appears that they were more optimistic over present chances for modification than they have been at any time since the war.

"There isn't a strictly modern brewery left in this country," states Charles J. Chvojan, general manager of the Pilsener Ice, Fuel & Beverage Company. "New machines perfected by European countries have antiquated even the most recently constructed American breweries, of which there are few, if any, built after 1916.

"There would be a huge rush to invest money in the business if it again became legitimate. Millions of dollars now idle would be placed into instant action in more than a dozen lines of the industry."

A large share of the vast amount of money estimated to be spent if beer was legalized would be for rehabilitation of present antiquated buildings formerly used for breweries, construction of new breweries, purchase of new equipment and initial purchases of materials with which to start production.

H. C. Lang, president of the Cleveland-Sandusky Brewing Company, seconded Chvojan's statements and added that "when modification come, we'll spend plenty."

The beer question, Lang believes, is being regarded from a serious economic standpoint instead of the former purely ethical side. This belief expresses the oft-reiterated opinion of the optimistic wets who forecast modification.

Only three Cleveland breweries have machinery intact, a survey shows, to begin immediate production of beer. Even at these places a considerable amount would have to be spent for modernization.

Before the war, there were nearly two dozen plants operating on 24-hour shifts in this city.

The survey resulted from Washington dispatches which reached here, quoting Senator Bingham (R), of Connecticut, as planning to introduce a bill making beer legal when Congress convenes in December.

If presented, the bill would go to the manufacturers' committee headed by Senator LaFollette (R), of Wisconsin. On this committee, also, is Senator Robert Bulkley (D), of Ohio, who stated here that he "most certainly would vote for such a measure."

Organized labor is back of the movement 100 per cent, according to Harry McLaughlin, Cleveland, president of the Ohio Federation of Labor. He sums up labor's stand in this way:

"Legal beer would give work to thousands of men. The laboring man, however, would not be the only one to benefit, for the movement would mean a spirited business increase to storekeepers, business men, manufacturers and financiers alike.

Not only all that, but state and federal taxes from beer would bring in enough revenue to solve the tax problems of the nation."

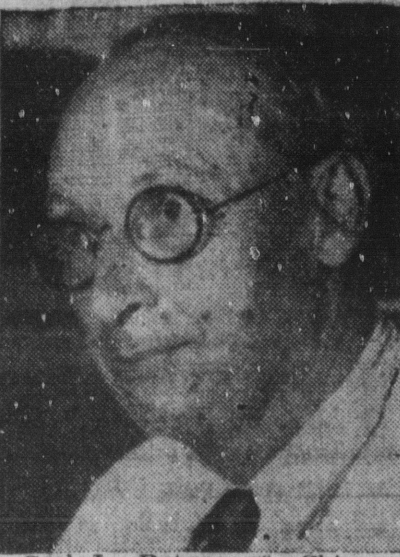

THOMASTON, Me., July 7 The all-night uproar at state prison appeared under control today.

Because they had been "disciplined" — made to march to the recreation grounds, instead of roaming at will from the dining room to the grounds, — the inmates spent most of the night shouting and throwing small stones they had hidden in their pockets and taken to their cells. Extra guards were posted to prevent a "break."

REPORT NEW DEBT PLANS

Mellon and Landin Reach Agreement; Hoover Consulted Over Phone.

PARIS, July 7—A complete new formula for the settlement of difficult questions still standing in the way of putting President Hoover's debt moratorium proposal into effect was agreed upon today by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and Finance Minister Pierre E. Landin, International News Service learned today.

Their agreement of course is subject to the approval of both President Hoover and the full French Cabinet.

The gist of this new agreement was understood to have been transmitted to President Hoover immediately by Secretary Mellon over the trans-Atlantic telephone and Mr. Mellon hoped to have the president's reply in time to present to the French finance minister before the cabinet breaks up this evening.

International News Service learned that this formula called for complete separation of the difficult question of German reparation payments "in kind" from the "accord principle" the settlement of the question of payment "in kind" would be left to an international committee of experts on which Germany would have representation.

Death Takes Hand In Fight For Modification of National Dry Law.

WASHINGTON, July 7— Fate has taken a hand in the perennial congressional battle over prohibition and today there is strong prospect of the house judiciary committee launching into an exhaustive investigation of light wines and beer when Congress reconvenes.

Death of Rep. George S. Graham (R) of Philadelphia, chairman of the judiciary committee, brings about the possibility for a marked change in the prohibition fight.

If the Republican organize the house, Rep. Leonidas C. Dyer (R) of Missouri is expected to succeed ranking Republican. He is in line and would be chosen unless the dyes made a successful fight on him.

And Dyer—one of the most enthusiastic advocates of modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer—would be in position to push his fight with new vigor.

During the last two years Dyer made strong efforts to obtain a hearing by the judiciary committee on the question of light wines and beer.

Congressman Mell G. Underwood of New Lexington, who represents the 11th district which includes Pickaway-co, in replying to a query from President Hoover as to his stand on the reparation holiday plan stated he would be glad to cooperate with the president on any move to improve economic conditions in the country at present.

However Mr. Underwood questions the advisability of postponing the payment of the war debt in view of the economic situation now existing in America.

SAFEGUARD FOR POISONOUS ALCOHOL ASKED BY MEDIC

WASHINGTON, July 6—"The moronic minority" should be protected by fool-proof safeguards from synthetic methanol, a highly poisonous alcohol which has caused large numbers of deaths during the last year.

This view was expressed today by Dr. Harrison E. Howe, editor of "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry," journal of the American Chemical society.

"The possibility of wholesale deaths from drinking methanol has unquestionably been greatly under-rated," Howe declared.

"The facts are that notwithstanding somewhat more than 200 deaths during the vast winter attributable to the use of methanol as a beverage, the injury predicted from its use in the automobile radiator did not materialize."

Howe suggested that the coloring of methanol sold for anti-freeze purposes should be continued, that some distinctly deterrent material be added as an additional warning and that there should be a prominent poison label on all packages.

"When these things have been done all can be reasonably expected by way of protection will have been provided," the chemist continued. "Agreement upon such a program by the industries concerned with faithful adherence to its provisions, will win the commendation of officials, some of whom have been critical of methanol distribution during the past winter."

Howe admitted the hazard involved in the widespread distribution of methanol. He said that "the problem now is the same that has confronted us for some time, namely, the hazard involved when ignorant people, or those with depraved tastes insist on drinking methanol, which we know is toxic when taken as a beverage."

"There have been ample experiments to prove this, and unfortunately they have been on a large scale. Over two hundred persons have died from drinking methanol. A dozen or more have died from drinking some of the older types of denatured alcohol and several thousand have died from drinking various brands of alleged liquors, in which Ethyl alcohol itself in the quantities consumed was probably the immediate cause of their demise.

"It is unfortunate that the trade rivalry for the anti-freeze market has led to a competition legislation."

Those who resent the intrusion of methanol are said to have introduced, or to have caused to introduce, in many state legislatures bills which seem to aim at prohibiting the use of methanol for any purpose, and particularly as an anti-freeze."

Howe held this manifestly unjust.

Safeguards in the distribution were advocated in order to render unnecessary legislative restrictions.

It may interest you to know that I was able to detect a very definite difference in the irritant qualities of the treated and untreated cigarettes. Several tests were made, not only on myself, but others as well, and we experienced little difficulty in selecting the treated or irradiated cigarettes as distinctly less irritating to the mucous membrane of the nose and pharynx than the control or untreated cigarettes."

SAIL or STEAM?

A N OLD SEA CAPTAIN once said "Any windjammer can ride out a storm with hatches battened down and the sails clewed up; but it takes a steamship to ride out a dead calm."

Too many business men today are trying to meet a dead calm with hurricane-warning tactics. Huddling below decks, they've clewed up their advertising appropriations with stout ropes of prejudice, battened down the hatches on their better judgment. One of these days they'll come on deck and wonder why they're so far from shore.

The steamship captain doesn't wait for trade winds to blow into the Port of Profits. He musters those trade winds with the driving power of live steam . . . piles fuel under his advertising boilers . . . starts his craft towards P rofits and usually reaches port before the old-fashioned skippers have spread their sails for an occasional buying breeze.

Becalmed on a glassy sea today, business will eventually be favored by that buying breeze. But why wait for it? The powerful engine of NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING are ready and waiting to stir up the unruffled expanse of buyer-indifference. And fuel is cheap . . . much cheaper than marking time while some wiser navigator gets to port ahead of you.

Geographic Perplexities

GEOGRAPHY is always perplexing in hot weather, but that of the recent ocean flight of Hilling and Hoiris was doubly confusing. Setting out from New Foundland for Denmark they presently found themselves over Spain which they mistook for France, and journeyed thence to Germany which they mistook for Denmark; landing at last in Copenhagen, their announced destination.

The pilots of the air who unconsciously get off their course by the breadth of continent can sympathize with the river pilots in Mark Twain's day when the Mississippi River changed its course so frequently and so suddenly that a town on the east bank on one journey might be 10 miles inland on the west shore on the next journey down.

Aviators Hilling and Hoiris will have to recount their adventures after the fashion of Capt. Isaiah Sellers, who Mark Twain immortalized in his 'Life of the Mississippi'.

Always in reciting his experiences, Sellers dated his islands back to the misty dawn of river history; he never used the same island twice, nor did he employ any island that still existed. And he never spoke, for example, of "the state of Mississippi"—he would say, "When the state of Mississippi was where Arkansas now is." And he would never speak of Louisiana or Missouri in general way, but instead would remark, "When Louisiana was up the river," or "When Missouri was on the Illinois side."

The best specimen of the makers' art about as useless to the ocean fliers as last year's soundings to a Mississippi river pilot.

MacDonald Speaks Out

In what even his political enemies described as "the greatest speech delivered in the house of commons in many years," Prime Minister MacDonald cited statistics tending to prove that Great Britain is the only world power that is actually reducing its armaments.

He showed that on the basis of present money purchasing power Great Britain's naval expenditure in 1914 was $370,000,000, in 1924 $272,000,000, and in 1930, $255,000,000, while that of the United States in 1914 was $210,000,000, in 1924, $350,000,000 and $390,000,000 last year.

This cannot be dismissed as British propaganda. The figures are taken from the budgets of the two countries, and the MacDonald indictment has an American precedent. Two years ago President Hoover, in an attack on American militarism, stated:

"The American people should understand that current expenditure on strictly military activities of the army and navy constitute the largest military budget of any nation in the world today."

The American people are not militaristic. They are sincere in their attitude toward disarmament and world peace. And they are not deliberate hypocrites when they talk peace and plan war. What has probably happened, as far as the private citizen is concerned, is that some element has been forcing up armaments of which the people have been ignorant while they preached the gospel of disarmament and world peace.

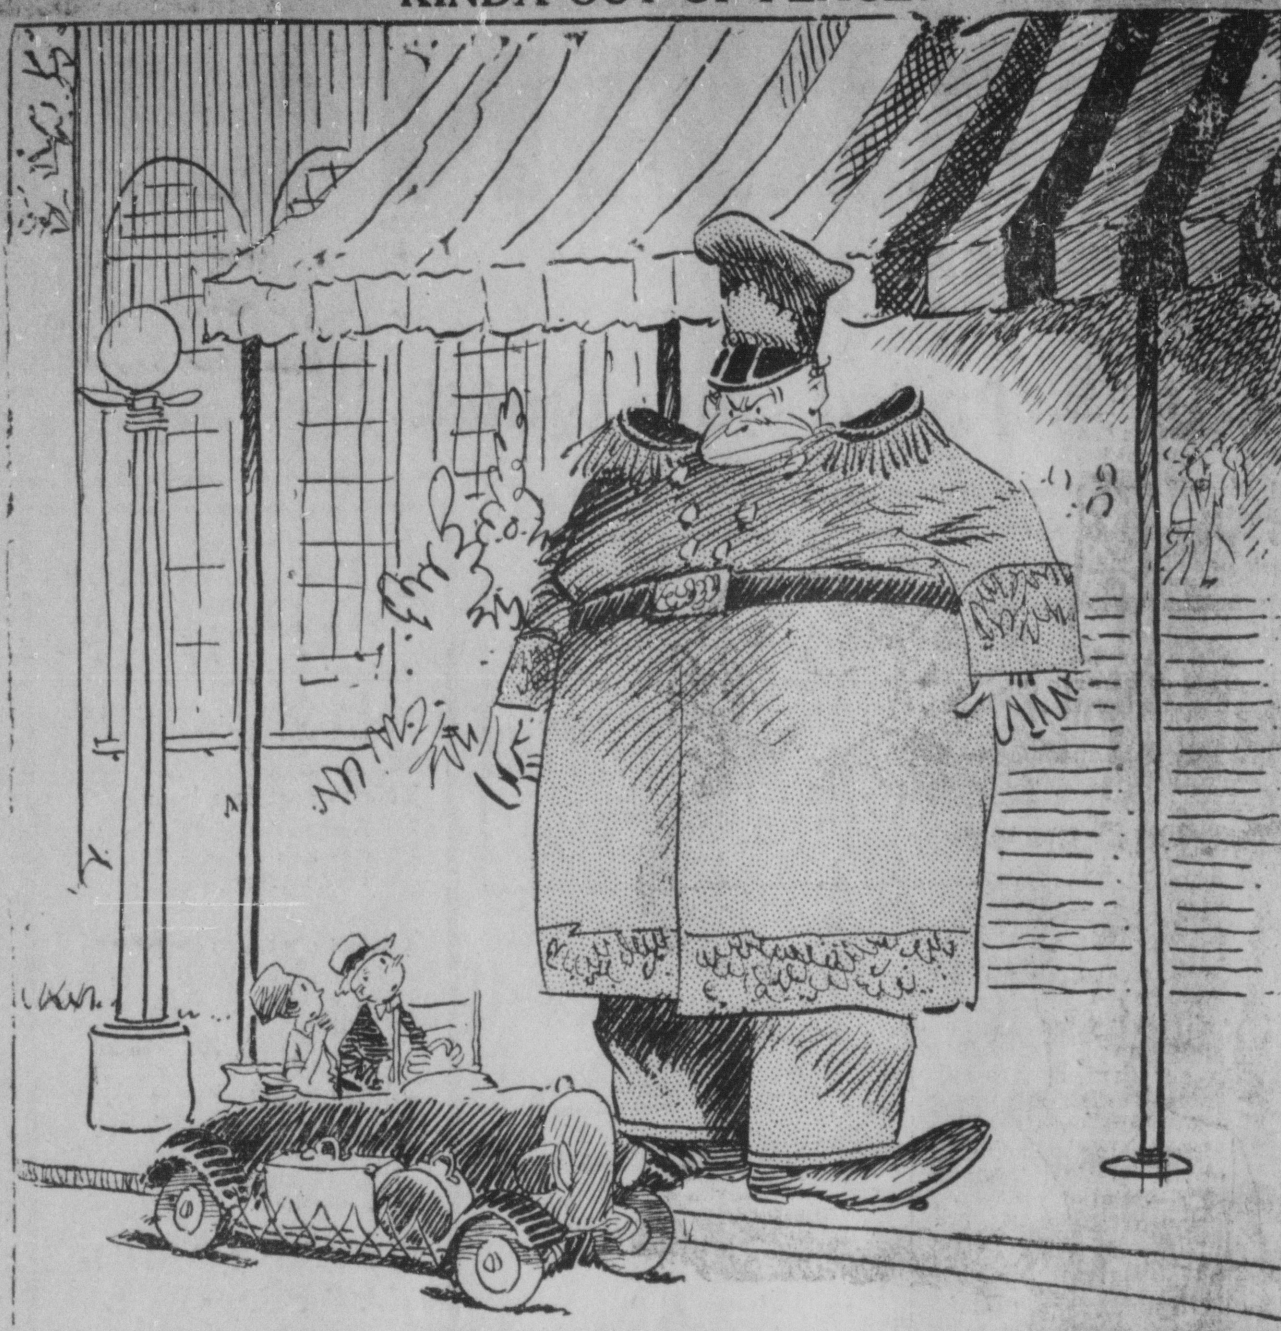

Sweet Music

AN inventor connected with the department of agriculture at Washington has perfected a "time-lapse" motion picture camera which photographs upon motion picture film the process of germination in seeds and the growth of plants. It makes possible a film record revealing to the human eye these mysterious processes of plant life which normally are invisible.

These two inventions hold a promise of television of such delicacy that man can both see and hear many things now neither visible nor audible to him.

The poet of old sang of the "music of the spheres" was more prophetic and scientific than his contemporaries believed. Now that science is making "silences" audible, the progress of stars hurtling through the void may some day be translated into rhythmic ether impulses that to the human ear may become celestial symphonies. What music could be sweeter to the ears of the farmer than that produced by his growing crops?

Mary Lou Thurston, a beautiful and vivacious girl of the "home" type, orphaned by the death of her parents, lives with her aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson. Mary looks after Billy, their youngest, while they go to business. Larry Mitchell, energetic, young newspaper reporter, is Mary Lou's pal. Mary Lou is happy but restless and eager for adventure. Sanderson gets a wonderful chance to go to the Orient on an engineering project. Mary Lou urges the Sandersons to go although she will be stranded. Larry wants to marry Mary as a happy solution to the situation, but she convinces him they are merely good pals. The Sandersons and Mary Lou visit Mrs. Sanderson's mother who is to care for Billy during his parents' absence.

CHAPTER IV.

DELAIDE was in the house and lying, as usual, on the very slippery, horsehair sofa, a knitted afghan over her knees. Adelaide didn't look ill, and for the very good reason that she was in excellent health. But she refused to believe it, and she had more aches and pains to the minute than most people have in a lifetime. She had long ago discovered that it was rather nice to be waited on, to have the neighbors run in with soup and custards, garden flowers and calves' foot jelly. She liked being called "poor Miss Jennings," and she adored hearing "how patient" she was "under her burden." And what most amazed her relatives—Clara in particular—was that old Mrs. Jennings, usually so clear-sighted and so impatient of fraud, should so completely believe in Adelaide's "heart attack" and Adelaide's "rheumatics," and be even a little proud of so gloriously invalid a daughter.

Imaginary Ills.

Adelaide was a plump and grayish blonde with an expression of resigned sweetness now, second nature to her. Billy, rushing into the living room where she lay, cast himself across her recumbent form without let or hindrance.

"Softly," begged Aunt Adelaide in her die-away voice. "Auntie has such a headache. How well you look, Billy boy!" she added, almost accusingly.

Clara and Howard tipped up—from force of habit—to remove their insensitive son, and inquired dutifully for Adelaide's well being. Adelaide sat up, reached for the smelling salts which stood on a small, entirely beautiful tip-top table beside her, inhaled deeply, and then launched into an account of three heart attacks in as many weeks, a stiff knee and a sense of breathlessness.

"I just can't get my breath at times," said the sufferer proudly, "but I'm as well as can be expected, thank you."

She then looked at Mary Lou, rosy from the crisp Autumn air, and inquired fretfully:

"Is that paint on your face, Mary Lou?"

"Why, no, Aunt Adelaide," Mary Lou remarked, giving the older woman her usual courteous title. "I never use it. I don't need it."

"Well," said Aunt Adelaide, "I don't like so much color in a young girl. Tell me," she asked Howard avidly, "is there any history of tuberculosis in Mary Lou's family? I don't like that bright color," she repeated.

"For goodness sake, Adelaide, no! Why should there be?" asked Howard, irritated. "Mary Lou comes of perfectly healthy stock."

At this moment, as Adelaide was about to burst into description of a school friend, "very like Mary Lou in coloring," who had died of galloping consumption before her shocked family was even aware she was sick, Grand-ma Jennings arrived with Adelaide's morning snack of hot milk, toast and jelly, and order was restored.

While Adelaide sipped—"No wonder she's fat," thought Mary Lou with scorn, "eating six times a day and never taking a step of exercise. I wish I could have her for a year. I'd scare her up on her feet!"—the family made their plans.

Making Plans.

Billy was to come out to Oakdale a day before his father and mother sailed, as Clara found it unnecessarily cruel to expose him to the emotional strain of a parting on a cold, wind-swept, depressing pier. His diet was discussed, his schooling, his clothes—all this being possible as Billy was out in the garden chasing Aunt Adelaide's coddled and indignant cat, with howls of merriment. Mary Lou was to follow him down, after closing the house, and to share his little bedroom until she made other plans. When the talk turned, as was natural, upon Howard's new position and the Orient, Adelaide was in her element, having known several missionaries to foreign parts who had either been murdered in mutinies, eaten by cannibals or who had died, lingeringly, of awful fevers, including dengue, black water and malaria. There was even one family wiped out there by cholera. At this juncture Howard Sanderson wiped his brow, gazed appealingly at his wife and escaped into the garden just in time to rescue the cat from Billy's firm, loving but unconsciously murderous embraces.

A little later, leaving the sisters together, Mary Lou went out to the kitchen to help Mrs. Jennings "dish up" dinner and to set the table. She was quite happy out there in the pleasant smell of roasting and baking, and made herself extremely useful. She and Grandma Jennings had always been good friends and Mary Lou thought, wistfully, that if she could only get some paying work she would be content to live in Oakdale with the old lady and Adelaide. But not as content with Adelaide. "Adelaide," thought Mary Lou, "gives me a pain in the neck! I'd like to shake some sense into her. She's so darned healthy she'll outlive us all!"

After dinner—which Adelaide enjoyed heartily, not coming to the table, however, but served on an ample tray—the Sandersons and Mary Lou stayed for another hour or so, sitting sedately in the living room, a hodge-podge of good and bad furniture, of mixed periods, after the dishes were washed and dried. And presently they left for their train, walking to the station for the good of their health after so lavish a meal.

Billy, who had been told merely that his mother and father had to go away for a time and that his Mary Lou, "gives me a pain in the neck! I'd like to shake some sense into her. She's so darned healthy she'll outlive us all!"

"He's very little," Mary Lou excused him, "and he doesn't realize. I expect that after you do go, he'll go through some bad times, and be awfully homesick for you, Clara." She refrained from adding what she further believed, knowing Billy, which was that he would soon forget, soon adapt himself, and even some adults. Not all grownups, however, possessed such a happy faculty, she pondered heavily.

The rest of the remaining time flew, or so it seemed to Mary Lou. The house was cleaned, things were stored, some were sold to friends and neighbors. Mary Lou and Billy raced along Shore Road one Saturday afternoon while the Sandersons went shopping for clothing suitable to the tropics. Billy serene and unconscious, Mary Lou with an increasingly sore heart. And presently the day had come for Clara and Howard to bid their little boy good-bye and take him out to Oakdale. Mary Lou stayed home that day, wondering about the empty house, a house which seemed the ghost of itself, most of the shabby, lived-in furniture gone, the walls showing marks of vanished pictures and the very floors, bare, echoing desolately to her tread. She was very unhappy and very uncertain of herself.

She would spend the night of the Sandersons' departure next door, with a friendly neighbor, for tomorrow morning the last pieces of furniture, beds, dressers and a chair or two would be gone.

Larry came over that evening, gazed soberly upon the emptiness, the strapped and looked trunks, the bulging and battered bags, gazed earnestly upon Mary Lou's pallor and "listened," as he said, to her extraordinary silence—a remarkable feat—and then dragged her out to dinner, dusty as she was, her trunk having already been expressed to Oakdale.

Pain of Parting.

"You'll seem so far off," she told him, over coffee. "I'll miss you."

"Not necessarily. Oakdale's only an hour or so away. You can't get rid of me as easily as that," he told her gayly, "and I'm trailing that job for you, Mary Lou. Trust your Uncle Larry!"

"Find me a job as companion," Mary Lou told him, trying to laugh. "You know—gentle and quiet! That's me! I can read aloud, Larry, and I think I can fetch footstools and carry trays and pull down window shades, for I've had quite a course of Aunt Adelaide, you know."

Larry had never met that plump and ailing lady, Mary Lou had given him a full description. He laughed and then sobered abruptly.

"Joking aside," said Larry, "if we could get you a job like that it would be great."

"It's about all I can do," she conceded in a small voice. "Cheer up," ordered Larry, fiercely, "or I'll make you marry me and then, woman, you'll have your hands full!"

Clara and Howard returned from Oakdale late that evening and Clara's eyes were red while her tall, lean husband was much subdued. The next morning, early, Mary Lou went with them to the boat. Larry managed to be there and others of their friends, including several past business associates. They were sailing by way of England, where they were to join the rest of the party which was going out to India on the construction work.

Severe Dieting More Harmful Than Obesity

If You Must Diet Begin "Between Meals," Advises Dr. Copeland, Warning Against the Peril in Eliminating the Nourishing Foods.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY persons grow fat. But in spite of their remorse and apparent dismay, they continue habits which increase their weight.

As a rule, I am not in favor of vigorous dieting. I believe this has become a fad in recent years. What with diets, daily advertised, there is no doubt that harm is being done.

For persons who are overweight, I advise restriction of food. But severe dieting, with sudden and marked loss of weight, will do more harm to the body than overweight can possibly do.

Obesity, as a rule, is the result of excessive eating. In most cases, when appetite is controlled, the weight is reduced.

I have observed individuals who refrain from eating nourishing food, which is required, yet who indulge freely in pastries, sweets, and other fattening foods. These foods are not needed by the body, but they do greatly facilitate increase in weight.

If you would be thinner, the amount of food taken must be diminished, but not entirely eliminated, of course. Foods containing necessary vitamins and important nutrients must be included in the diet. Excessive eating of carbohydrates can be omitted without damage to the body.

Eating between meals is not essential to health. Indeed, it is one of the chief sins of the obese. In attempting to reduce, the first rule to follow is absolute avoidance of between-meal eating. Common sense management of daily eating must be practiced if loss of weight is desired. The individual who really is desirous of losing weight and is co-operative and intelligent, can do so without injury to his health. He must train himself to temperance, and though the results may take time, it is the only safe method.

Loss of weight must be gradual. A loss of two pounds a week is sufficient and one should not endeavor to lose more. Rapid reduction in weight will injure the health by impairing the strength of the heart and nervous system.

Please remember that a reduction in weight requires the formation of new eating habits. Once these have been acquired, you will be able to hold your new weight without any

At the Circleville Theatres

AT THE GRAND

"Charley's Aunt," the Columbia farce, produced by Christie, now showing at the Grand Theatre, certainly robbed the legitimate stage of plenty of talent. Since the advent of talking pictures, the films have done this consistently. Actors and actresses are attracted to this new medium. They lose nothing of the stage lure, with the exception of course, of the direct audience reaction, and in its place gain a number of advantages which the stage could never offer. If a stage star gets the opportunity, he is more than glad to relinquish his former allegiance and pledge it to the newer art—the talking screen.

AT THE CLIFTONA

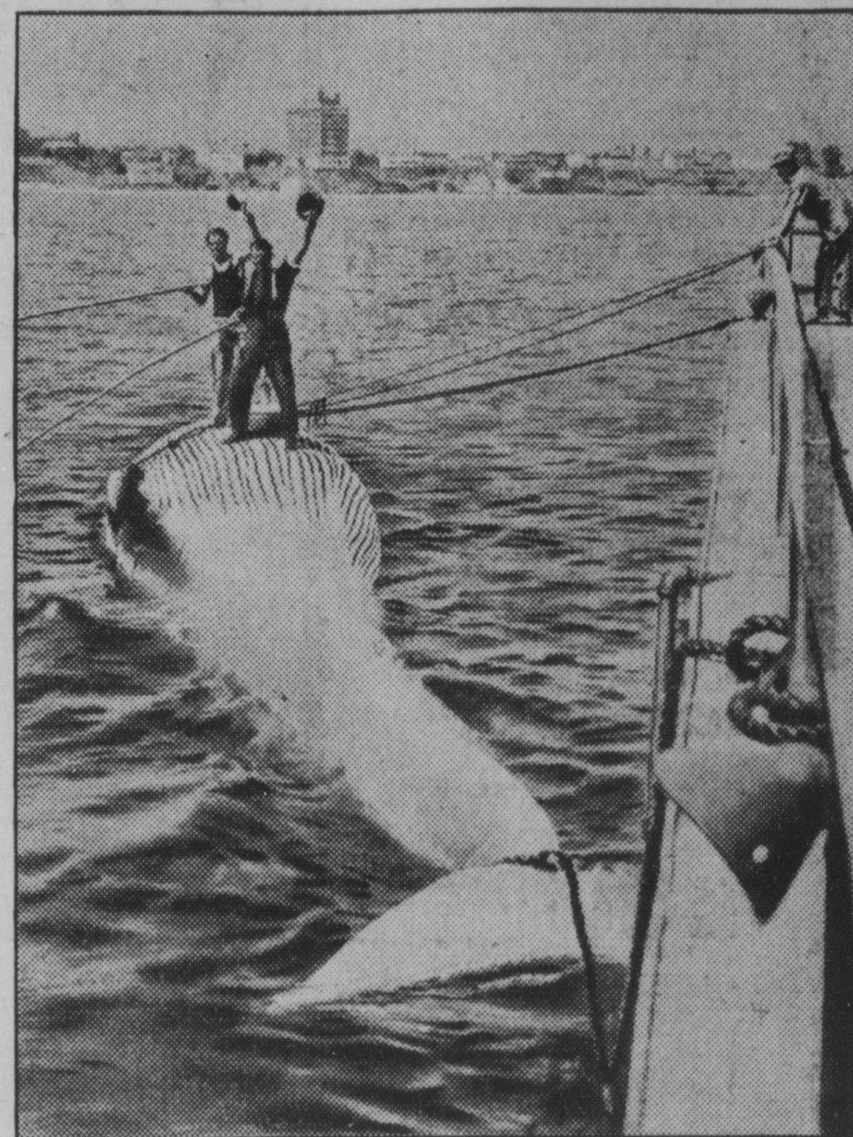

Ronald Colman plays a smooth and polished English gentleman, a society favorite and popular athlete

in his third and latest talking picture, "Raffles," the mystery thriller which is coming to the Cliftona theater on Wednesday. Refined and suave though he may be, Raffles finds the lure of criminal adventure more than he can resist. In consequence his many distinguished associates are victimized time and again without the faintest suspicion of who the malefactor can be. Being parallel in theme, "Raffles" is a fit successor to Colman's two previous talker successes, "Bulldog Drummond" and "Condemned."

You can tell a good neighborhood. The bill collectors are to light for roughhouse work.

What we need is a great magazine filled with articles showing how and why prominent failures got that way.

This picture shows the enormous whale that will be here tomorrow, Thurs. accompanied by its ten ton baby. The whales were captured last August in the Pacific Ocean and will be shown here in a special steel railroad car on West Main Street at the Norfolk and Western tracks. The mother whale weighs 68 tons and is 55 feet long.

Captain David Barnett, 68 year old whaler, will be here and will have with him a crew of ten whalers and lecturers who will be at the car at all times. It was necessary to fill the whale with compressed air immediately after shooting it in order to render it buoyant in the water. This picture shows the air lines going into the whale from the ship. This is a gray finback, the largest of all species of whale. Its mouth is fourteen feet wide and it can hold two tons of food in it at one time, yet its throat is so small it would choke to death on an object no larger than an ordinary grapefruit. Numerous other interesting features are also shown including a Pilot fish. The little fellow measures but twelve inches yet the big whale, on account of very poor eyesight, is wholly dependent upon it for direction through the water. There are hundreds of these little Pilot fish all over the head and nose of the big whale, and, with their tails swinging in unison, they guide or pilot the big whale to its feeding grounds. All these interesting things are explained by Captain Barnett and his crew in the continuous lectures that are given on the big car. Mary Lou Thurston, a beautiful and vivacious girl of the "home" type, orphaned by the death of her parents, lives with her aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson. Mary Lou is a happy, energetic, young newspaper reporter, is Mary Lou's pal. Mary Lou is happy but restless and eager for adventure. Sanderson gets a wonderful chance to go to the Orient on an engineering project. Mary Lou urges the Sandersons to go at once, though she will be stranded. Larry wants to marry Mary as a happy solution to the situation, but she convinces him they are merely good pals. The Sandersons and Mary Lou visit Mrs. Sanderson's mother who is to care for Billy during his parents' absence.

CHAPTER IV.

ADELAIDE was in the house and lying, as usual, on the very slippery, horsehair sofa, a knitted afghan over her knees. Adelaide didn't look ill, and for the very good reason that she was in excellent health. But she refused to believe it, and she had more aches and pains to the minute than most people have in a lifetime. She had long ago discovered that it was rather nice to be wanted on, to have the neighbors run in with soup and custards, garden flowers and calves' foot jelly. She liked being called "poor Miss Jennings," and she adored hearing "how patient" she was "under her burden." And what most amazed her relatives—Clara in particular—was that old Mrs. Jennings, usually so clear-sighted and so impatient of fraud, should so completely believe in Adelaide's "heart attack" and Adelaide's "rheumatism," and be even a little proud of so gloriously invalid a daughter.

Imaginary Ills.

Adelaide was a plump and gray-haired woman with an expression of mingled sweetness and second nature to her. Billy, rushing into the living room where she lay, cast himself across her recumbent form without let or hindrance. "Softly," begged Aunt Adelaide in her die-away voice, "Auntie has such a headache. How well you look, Billy boy!" she added, almost accusingly.

Clara and Howard tiptoed up—fear of force of habit—to remove dutifully for Adelaide's well-being the smelling salts which stood on a small, entirely beautiful tip-top table beside her, inhaled deeply, and then launched into an account of three heart attacks in as many weeks, a stiff knee and a sense of breathlessness.

"I just can't get my breath at times," said the sufferer proudly, "but I'm as well as can be expected, thank you."

She then looked at Mary Lou, who from the open autumn air, and inquired freely: "Is that point on your face, Mary Lou?"

"Why, no, Aunt Adelaide," Mary Lou remarked, "I don't know what you mean. I never use a cosmetic."

died of galloping consumption before her shocked family was even aware she was sick. Grandmother Jennings arrived with Adelaide's morning snack of hot milk, toast and jelly, and order was restored.

While Adelaide sipped—"No wonder she's fat," thought Mary Lou with scorn, "eating six times a day and never taking a step of exercise. I wish I could have her for a year. I'd scare her up on her feet!"—the family made their plans.

Making Plans.

Billy was to come out to Oakdale a day before his father and mother sailed, as Clara found it unnecessary cruel to expose him to the emotional strain of a parting on a cold, wind-swept, depressing pier. His diet was discussed, his schooling, his clothes—all this being possible as Billy was out in the garden chasing Aunt Adelaide's coddled and indignant cat, with howls of merriment. Mary Lou was to follow him down, after closing the house, and to share his little bedroom until she made other plans. When the talk turned, as was natural, upon Howard's new position and the Orient, Adelaide was in her element, having known several missionaries to foreign parts who had either been cannibals or who had died, lingeringly, of awful fevers, including dengue, black water and malaria. There was even one family wiped out with cholera. At this juncture Howard Sanderson wiped his brow, gazed appealingly at his wife and escaped into the garden just in time to rescue the cat from Billy's firm, loving but unconsciously murderous embraces.

A little later, leaving the sisters together, Mary Lou went out to the kitchen to help Mrs. Jennings "dish up" dinner and to set the table. She was quite happy out there in the pleasant smell of roasting and baking, and made herself extremely useful. She and Grandma Jennings had always been good friends and Mary Lou thought, wistfully, that if she could only get some paying work she would be content to live in Oakdale with the old lady and Billy. But not as content with Adelaide. "Adelaide," thought Mary Lou, "gives me a pain in the neck. I'd like to shake some sense into her. She's so darned healthy she'll outlive us all!"

After dinner—which Adelaide enjoyed heartily, not coming to the table, however, but served on an ample tray—the Sandersons and Mary Lou stayed for another hour or so, sitting sedately in the living room, a hodge-podge of good and bad furniture, of mixed periods, after the dishes were washed and dried. And presently they left for their train, walking to the station for the good of their health after so lavish a meal.

Billy, who had been told merely that his mother and father had to go away for a time and that he would soon come to stay with Grand Aunt Adelaide and the cat, was perfectly happy in the charming selfishness of children, too young to realize the impending long separation, and delighted with the thought of country and garden and freedom, to say nothing of the spoiling he would get from his relatives, of which he was perfectly aware. The fact that Mary Lou would be with him too, made everything quite all right.

Clara was happy for him that he "took it that way," but, mother-like, she naturally could not forbear a little pang of jealousy that her boy seemed so indifferent to her departure. "Not," she added hastily, "that I want him to

"He's very little," Mary Lou excused him, "and he doesn't realize. I expect that after you do go, he'll go through some bad times and be awfully homesick for you, Clara." She refrained from adding what she further believed, knowing Billy, which was that he would soon forget, soon adapt himself. Children were like that, she thought, and even some adults. Not all grownups, however, possessed such a happy faculty, she pondered heavily.

The rest of the remaining-time flew, or so it seemed to Mary Lou. The house was cleaned, things were stored, some were sold to friends and neighbors. Mary Lou and Billy raced along Shore Road one Saturday afternoon while the Sandersons went shopping for clothing suitable to the tropics. Billy serene and unconscious, Mary Lou with an increasingly sore heart. And presently the day had come for Clara and Howard to bid their little boy good-bye and take him out to Oakdale. Mary Lou stayed home that day, wandering about the empty house, a house which seemed the ghost of itself, most of the shabby, lived-with furniture gone, the walls showing marks of vanished pictures and the very floors, bare, echoing desolately to her tread. She was very unhappy and very uncertain of herself.

She would spend the night of the Sandersons' departure next door, with a friendly neighbor, for tomorrow morning the last pieces of furniture, beds, dressers and a chair or two would be gone. Larry came over that evening, gazed soberly upon the emptiness, the strapped and locked trunks, the bulging and battered bags, gazed earnestly upon Mary Lou's pallor and "listened," as he said, to her extraordinary silence—a remarkable feat—and then dragged her out to dinner, dusty as she was, her trunk having already been expressed to Oakdale.

Pain of Parting.

"You'll seem so far off," she told him, over coffee. "I'll miss you."

"Not necessarily. Oakdale's only an hour or so away. You can't get rid of me as easily as that," he told her gayly, "and I'm losing that job for you, Mary Lou. Trust your Uncle Larry!"

"Find me a job as companion," Mary Lou told him, trying to laugh. "You know—gentle and quiet! That's me! I can read aloud, Larry, and I think I can fetch footstools and carry trays and pull down window shades. I've had quite a course of Aunt Adelaide, you know."

Larry had never met that plump and ailing lady, but Mary Lou had given him a full description. He laughed and then sobered abruptly.

"Joking aside," said Larry, "if we could get you a job like that, it would be great."

"It's about all I can do," she conceded in a small voice.

"Cheer up," ordered Larry fiercely, "or I'll make you marry me and then, woman, you'll have your hands full!"

Clara and Howard returned from Oakdale late that evening and Clara's eyes were red while her tall, lean husband was snuggled. The next morning, early, Mary Lou went with them to the boat. Larry managed to be there and others of their friends, including several past business associates. They were sailing by way of England, where they were to join the rest of the party which was going out to India on the construction work.

Severe Dieting More Harmful Than Obesity

If You Must Diet Begin "Between-Meals," Advises Dr. Copeland, Warning Against the Peril in Eliminating the Nourishing Foods.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY persons grow fat. But in spite of their remoteness and apparent distaste, they continue habits which increase their weight.

As a rule, I am not in favor of vigorous dieting. I believe this has become too much of a fad in recent years. What with diets, daily advertised, there is no doubt that harm is being done.

For persons who are overweight, I advise restriction of food. But severe dieting, with sudden and marked loss of weight, will do more harm to the body than overweight can possibly do.

Obesity, as a rule, is the result of excessive eating. In most cases, when appetite is controlled, the weight is reduced.

I have observed individuals who refrain from eating nourishing food, which is required, yet who indulge freely in sweets, fruits and other tasteful foods. These foods are not harmful to the body, but they do not furnish the necessary nourishment. If you would be sensible, you would eat a balanced diet, not one that is too rich or too poor.

Nothing between meals is not essential to health. Indeed, it is one of the chief signs of the obese. In attempting to reduce, the first rule to follow is absolute avoidance of between-meal eating. Common sense management of daily eating must be practiced if loss of weight is desired. The individual who really is desirous of losing weight and is co-operative and intelligent can do so without injury to his health. He must train himself to temperance, and then the results may take time. It is the only safe method.

Loss of weight must be gradual. A loss of two pounds a week is sufficient and one should not endeavor to lose more. Rapid reduction in weight will injure the health by impairing the strength of the heart and nervous system.

Please remember that a reduction in weight requires the formation of new eating habits. Once these have been acquired, you will be able to hold your new weight without any

At the Circleville Theatre

AT THE GRAND

"Charley's Aunt," the Columbia farce, produced by Christie, now showing at the Grand Theatre, certainly robbed the legitimate stage of plenty of talent. Since the advent of talking pictures, the films have done this consistently. Actors and actresses are attracted to this new medium. They lose nothing of the stage lure, with the exception of course, of the direct audience reaction, and in its place gain a number of advantages which the stage could never offer. If a stage star gets the opportunity, he is more than glad to relinquish his former allegiance, and pledge it to the newer art—the talking screen.

AT THE CLIFTONA

in his third and latest talking picture, "Raffles," the mystery thriller which is coming to the Cliftona theater on Wednesday. Raffles and suave though he may be, Raffles finds the lure of criminal adventure more than he can resist. In consequence his many distinguished associates are victimized time and again without the faintest suspicion of who the malefactor can be. Being parallel in them, "Raffles" is a fit successor to Colman's two previous talker successes, "Bulldog Drummond" and "Condemned!"

You can tell a good neighborhood. The bill collectors and light for roughhouse work.

What we need is a great zine filled with articles showing and why prominent figures got that way.

This picture shows the enormous whale that will be here tomorrow, Thurs. accompanied by its ten ton baby. The whales were captured last August in the Pacific Ocean and will be shown here in a special steel railroad car on West Main Street at the waterfront and Western tracks. The mother whale weighs 68 tons and is 55 feet long. Captain David Barnett, 68 year old whaler, will be here and will have with him a crew of ten whalers and lecturers who will be at the car at all times. It was necessary to fill the whale with compressed air immediately after shooting it in order to render it buoyant in the water. This picture shows the air lines going into the whale from the ship. This is a gray finback, the largest of all species of whale. Its mouth is fourteen feet wide and it can hold two tons of food in it at one time, yet its throat is so small it would choke to death on an object no larger than an ordinary grapefruit. Numerous other interesting features are also shown including a Pilot fish. The little fellow measures but twelve inches yet the big whale, on account of very poor eyesight, is wholly dependent upon it for its direction through the water. There are hundreds of these little Pilot fish all over the head and nose of the big whale, and, with their tails swinging in unison, they guide or pilot the big whale to its feeding grounds. All these interesting things are explained by Captain Barnett and his crew in the continuous lectures that are given on the big car. Special lighting arrangements will be made and this is necessary in order to accommodate the huge crowds that attend. It stays open day and night.

A NOLD SEA CAPTAIN once said "Any windjammer can ride out a storm with hatches battened down and the sails clewed up; but it takes a steamship to ride out a dead calm."

Too many business men today are trying to meet a dead calm with hurricane-warning tactics. Huddling below decks, they've clewed up their advertising appropriations with stout ropes of prejudice, battened down the hatches on their better judgment. One of these days they'll come on deck and wonder why they're so far from shore.

The steamship captain doesn't wait for trade winds to blow into the Port of Profits. He musters those trade winds with the driving power of live steam . . . piles fuel under his advertising boilers . . . starts his craft towards P rofits and usually reaches port before the old-fashioned skippers have spread their sails for an occasional buying breeze.

Becalmed on a glassy sea today, business will eventually be favored by that buying breeze.
But why wait for it? The powerful engine of NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING are ready and waiting to stir up the unruffled expanse of buyer-indifference. And fuel is cheap . . .
much cheaper than marking time while some wiser navigator gets to port ahead of you.

LOW PRICE PROSPECT MAKES WHEAT CHEAP FEED FOR HOGS

By H. STANLEY LEWIS

The low price prospect for wheat and the inferior quality of the crop make wheat a cheap hog feed source.

The following is a summary of results obtained by the Ohio Experiment Station which may be used as a guide by Pickaway-co hog feeders: In six tests made by W. L. Robinson, in charge of swine investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station, corn and ground wheat were compared for 62 pound pigs, using a supplement with both feeds. The pigs fed wheat were ready for market two weeks earlier than those fed corn, and the wheat was worth 4.8 per cent more a pound than the corn. In six other tests, with 105 pounds shots, there was no difference in the rapidity of the gains and the ground wheat was worth 3.2 per cent less a pound than the corn.

Ground wheat is preferable to whole wheat for pigs. Mr. Robinson states that, in experiments comparing the two, the pigs given ground wheat not only gained more rapidly and were ready for market two weeks earlier, but required 11.7 per cent less feed per unit of gain than those given whole wheat. Even with 60 cent wheat the advantage of grinding aside from the faster growth, amounted to 7.2 cents a bushel, or a net saving of 15 cents on each 100 pounds of grain in live weight. With wheat at $1.05 the saving would be 12.6 cents a bushel, or 57 cents per 100 pounds of increase in live weight. Coarse grinding is desirable. If ground too fine wheat tends to form a sticky mass in the animal's mouth. If fine grinding is practiced, using a little oats or corn with the wheat is helpful in overcoming the stickiness. Otherwise, there is no advantage from feeding corn or other grains with wheat.

Soaking wheat for hogs is sometimes practiced. Experiments comparing dry with soaked whole wheat showed that on the average, no wheat was saved by soaking. Nor was there any benefit from soaking after it was ground. Moistening ground wheat when the pigs were hand-fed was apparently advisable. The limited data available indicate that self feeding dry ground wheat is as satisfactory as feeding moistened ground wheat twice daily. Pigs on forage, given wheat, need approximately 8, 6, and 4 percent of tankage, or its equivalent in other protein feeds, in their ration while weighing less than 75, between 75 and 125, and over 125 pounds, respectively. Those of the same weight and not getting forage need approximately 14.10 and 6 percent, respectively.

ALFALFA FIELD DAY IS PLANNED

Methods of producing profitable yields of alfalfa will be thrown in the limelight when hundreds of Ohio farmers attend the first alfalfa field day to be held in Ohio, according to E. P. Reed, specialist in soils and farm crops at the Ohio State University, who says that the field day will be held on July 23 at the emergency airport filed, near Delta, Fulton County.

Visitors attending alfalfa field day will inspect the exhibits and demonstrations dealing with hay making machinery, grades of alfalfa hay, alfalfa hay in the field, and alfalfa fertilizer plots. Considerable attention will be devoted to the best time to windrow or rake alfalfa, and to the field grading of this legume which involves the result obtained by cutting alfalfa at different stages. Visitors will also see the advantages of swath cured, windrow cured, combined swath and windrow cured, and cock cured alfalfa hay, the reasons for using different sized windrows raked with side delivery and dump rake, and the best method of handling wet hay and of loading hay. A representative of the United States Department of Markets will be present to grade hay.

All the field operations for making alfalfa hay will be demonstrated and an exhibit of haymaking equipment will be presented throughout the entire day, July 23, Reed states.

Among the departments at the state university cooperating in the alfalfa field day are: agricultural engineering, animal husbandry, rural economics, farm crops and soils, plant pathology, and entomology.

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will L. Lindhorst

HOW YOU CAN SMOKE A PIPE WITHOUT LIGHTING IT

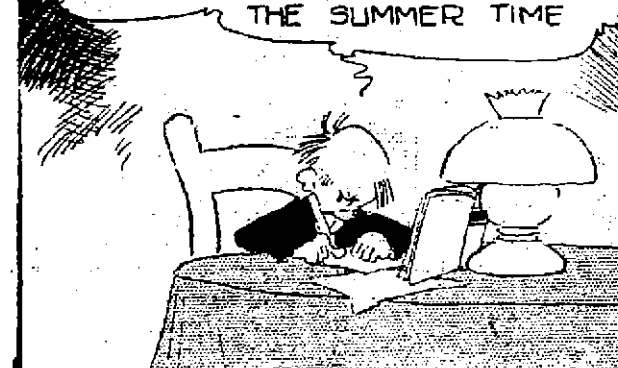

Two pipes, a little spirit of salts and liquid ammonia are necessary for this trick. Secretly smear the inside of the bowl of one pipe with the spirit of salts and the bowl of the other with the ammonia and appear before your audience announcing that you will produce smoke from the empty bowls of the pipes without the use of a match. Place the bowl of one pipe on top of the other, and the spirit of salts coming in contact with the ammonia will form a smoke much like that produced from tobacco.

Greatest Golf Test Is History

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN

TOLEDO, O., July 7.—Billy

Burke, the courageous ex-caddy of Greenwich, Conn., who won the most dramatic National Open golf championship in history after a sensational 72-hole play-off with George Von Elm of Los Angeles, was hailed today as a worthy successor to the illustrious Bobby Jones whose crown he now wears.

Burke's epic victory, the hardest ever earned in a major tournament, demonstrated beyond all doubt that he was the class of the field of 150 entrants who so hopefully started out last Thursday in quest of the glory that goes with the winning of a National Open. He had to have class to conquer a field that included Von Elm, Leo Diegel, Bill Mehlhorn, Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Whiffy Cox, MacDonald Smith, Mortie Dutra, Al Espinosa, and Johnny Farrell, to say nothing of the foreign stars who fell by the wayside.

Many a year will pass before the pros in their locker rooms, the sport writers and the run of mine golfers cease to discuss the sensational 72-hole play-off that Burke was forced to go through to settle his right to the crown. It was something that never has happened before and probably will never happen again.

Burke rose to the heights when he ultimately conquered Von Elm by the slim margin of one stroke yesterday evening in the second 36-hole play-off after battled-scarred Inverness. They had been tied on Saturday evening at the end of the regulation 72-hole of championship play at 292 each, two strokes ahead of Leo Diegel.

They played a 36-hole play-off Sunday and when they holed out at the final green they were dead-locked at 149. So yesterday they started their second 36-hole play-off and the match had to go to the thirty-sixth hole before the issue was decided, with Burke turning in a card of 148 and Von Elm 149.

When Burke and Von Elm shook hands on that last green Burke had a grand total of 589 strokes for 144 holes, and Von Elm 590. No two golfers in all history had staged such a close and unrelenting battle. Burke's game was a trifle more consistent than Von Elm's. The latter was brilliant but erratic at times. Burke recorded only three sixes throughout the entire championship. He played steady and brainy golf and his poise was superb. Von Elm was decidedly more temperamental but that could be well understood, considering the tremendous pressure the two men were under.

Unstinted credit must be accorded Von Elm. He was superb in defeat. He demonstrated he is one of the best "money players" in the game by three sterling performances, namely: first, when he shot a birdie 3 Saturday afternoon to tie Burke at 292; second, when he shot four successive birdies on Sunday to stay in the running in the first 36-hole play-off and third, when, on the final green Sunday afternoon he shot a birdie to tie Burke with 149 and force the playing of another 26-hole round.

FAST FINISH HELPS CARDS

Come From Behind To Defeat Cuts; Brooklyn Falls Before Elliott.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Storm clouds in the path of the St. Louis Cardinals started to break up today and it began to look like John McGraw and Wilbert Robinson will change their shirts several times before the Red Birds are headed, if at all.

The Cards soon swing to Sportsman's Park and as they generally do very well at home, midsummer's madness is quite likely to see them still pushing the dust over the in-and-out Giants and Robins.

The National League champions showed some of the fighting spirit that got them that way, when they staged a Garrison finish Monday to overcome the collapsible Cubs in the ninth and win, 6 to 5. The victory gave St. Louis a four-game lead over New York.

When the final inning opened, Adams, the infielder the Cubs got rid of for no good reason, coaxed a walk off Bob Smith, who managed to dispose of the next two batters. Two men out, then, and the Bruins had the old ball game won, 5 to 4. But Collins, Cardinal first baseman, doubled to center, scoring the ex-Cub, Adams, and Roettger settled the thing then and there by whacking another double to left, scoring Collins.

Jumbo Jim Elliott, a Brooklyn castoff pitcher, humbled his former teammates, Philadelphia setting the Robins on their heels, 5 to 3. Elliott gave his old pals only six hits and homers by Buzz Arlett and Lee helped him on the offensive. It was Elliott's 11th triumph this season and his fourth over Brooklyn.

Joe Cronin was whooping it up on second base in the eighth inning when the Washington-Philadelphia game was called on account of rain with the score 0 to 0, and Hadley and Walberg in a hot hurling set. The tie left the Senators four and a half games back of the A's.

WILLAMAN REMAINS

ON HIS GRID WORK

COLUMBUS, D.—While others

go on vacations, Sam Willaman,

Ohio State university football coach, stays here—and works.

Although Sam usually hies away to a summer camp he owns, this summer he is staying in town, and all his time is spent in mapping out Ohio State's football program for next fall.

While Sam has not been officially hired for next year, there now seems to be little doubt but that he will be re-appointed. As far as can be determined, his employers all are well satisfied with his work and convinced that he will be able to even a better job next fall.

Willaman bases his principal hopes for next season on changes he expects to make in the backfield. His line will be torn to pieces with the loss of Wesley Fessler and Dick Larkins, and the entire front barrier will have to be rebuilt. One of his stars is expected to be "Stew" Holcomb, the Erie, Pa., back who recently was elected captain of the team.

WHAT OF FESLER?

COLUMBUS, O.—Consider the case of the widely-traveled Wesley Fessler.

Not long ago the former Ohio State university all-American football star signed a contract with the Columbus American association baseball team. True, that wasn't much traveling, since he was already residing here in a fraternity house.

Soon after, however, it was announced that he had been farmed out to the Houston team in the Texas league, and so he packed a bag and started for the Rio Grande country.

After a short stay there he learned that he was to move again. He came back to Columbus. After watching the Houston team play one game, he was moved again.

Leaving Columbus, he went to Danville in the Three-Eye league. How long he will stay there nobody knows.

Inasmuch as Columbus, Houston and Danville properties all belong to the St. Louis Cardinals, Fessler is busy inquiring about other Card holdings in an attempt to learn what his next stop will be.

SEATTLE, July 7.—A second forced landing of the tri-motored refueling plane caused another postponement today of the Fort Worth-Seattle-Tokyo flight planned by Reginald L. Robbins and H. S. Jones.

The refueling ship which is to fill the Pacific flight craft over Fairbanks and Nome, Alaska, left Hazelton, B. C., before noon yesterday and was forced down at Telegraph Creek, late in the afternoon. Previously it landed at Anxox, B. C.

TIGHT GAME ENDS IN ROUT AS GROCERS DEFEAT COCA COLA 9

Score of 2-1 in Five Innings Becomes 17-7 in Nine Innings; Groceryboys Count Nine Times in Sixth Frame; Kline Socks Two Doubles and Home Run.

A recreation ball game that was hotly contested for five innings with the score being only 2-1, ended in a rout at Utilities field Monday night. The Independent Grocers began their quest for second half honors when they defeated the Coca Cola 17-7.

For five innings the game was as tight an encounter as has been staged in the 'red' loop, this season. Then the balloon went up and the Coca Cola team went with it. Nine runs were scored by the Grocers in the sixth frame. Several hits went through the infield. Then Grocer hitters began dropping the leather between the infield and the outfielders with the result that plenty more base hits were tallied. The Grocers were finally extinguished after nearly every batter had stepped to the plate twice.

The Coca Colas scored once in the seventh and four more in the eighth, but to make things more certain the Grocers stepped out in the eighth to score five times more.

Heavy hitting featured the contest with the Grocers gaining most of the honors. Howard White, Circleville Oil pitcher, tossed them over for the Grocers, and hit safely four times, one a double. Timmy Kline registered three hits, two doubles and one home run; George Brungs, Red Men infielder, played third for the Grocers and

A DANGER TO HEALTH

PREVENT HIM!

Flies are carriers of diseases and a menace of human health and welfare. They live and breed around the filthiest places—such as pit privies, garbage cans, dumping places, dirt and rubbish, and then visit our homes, kitchens and dining rooms, and share our foods.

They pick up on their feet and wings germs and filth and carry it along to our homes and kitchens, deposit these germs on our foods and drinks, and transmit to us different disease such as typhoid fever, intestinal diarrhoea, tuberculosis and contagious infectious diseases. As you look around, you will see flies roaming everywhere—in the spittoons, and garbage cans, filthy and dirty places—and immediately after, you see them on your hands or forehead, face, and every other part that they can land. They have no consideration for anybody nor anything, they make themselves at home whether they are welcome or not.

How often are we disgusted

when we sit down at the lunch counter in a nice clean restaurant, everything is so inviting, aesthetic, and lo and behold, all of a sudden we see a fly land on our coffee, and we get disgusted, our appetite is gone and we feel like getting up in disgust. All this could be avoided by proper prevention. We can prevent them from hatching by swatting the first fly of the season.

Science tells us that it takes ten days for a fly to hatch, and it takes 1 to 15 days for the female fly to lay eggs, thus the generation of the fly family is from 21 to 25 days. Thus at each 25 days there is a new crop of flies, which could have been prevented by proper preventative measures.

SEARS SAYS BOOZE USE IS DECLINING

COLUMBUS, O., July 7.—"The public has learned to have a good time without booze."

Says who?

Says State Prohibition Commissioner Clarence D. Sears.

Commissioner Sears ventured that bit of opinion today after checking up on the holiday reports of state inspectors which showed an unusual scarcity of liquor arrests for July 4 and July 5.

Liquor disturbances both Saturday and Sunday were rare, the commissioner said, adding that obedience to the prohibition amendment is becoming more general throughout the state.

OHIO BANDITS TAKE JEWELRY

Daring Pair Smash Window of Springfield Store, Escape In Two Minutes.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 7.—With lightning-like rapidity, two bandits today smashed a heavy plate glass window of the Hofman Green jewelry store here, seized valuables worth approximately $5,000 and escaped in an automobile.

The robbery took place all within a brief two minutes according to police records. An automatic alarm went off when the plate glass window was broken at 4:14 a. m. Police arrived at the scene two minutes later at 4:16 just to see the bandits speeding south.

Police gave chase to the bandits but lost the trail.

Following an investigation at the jewelry store authorities were unable to determine what the bandits had used to smash the window.

GROUP TO DISCUSS PICKAWAY BRIDGE

County commissioners, representatives of the city, and County Engineer J. Howard Sweetman will meet with members of the state highway department at 2 p. m. Wednesday to discuss plans and arrangements for constructing a new cement bridge over Hargus Creek on N. Pickaway-st.

The plans for the bridge were completed sometime ago by County Engineer Sweetman and were officially O. K'ed by the state highway department.

A new bridge at this site has been talked of for several years, and if it is constructed will add much improvement to the street, in addition to aiding the drive to Berger Hospital.

HESSIAN FLY IS NOW ON WARPATH

The June insect survey for Pickaway-co shows that wheat growers throughout the county must follow the precaution of observing the fly safe date if serious damage by Hessian fly is to be averted. The survey which was made by close examination of a number of wheat fields taken in representative sections of the county, showed that the Hessian fly infestation averaged 8 per cent for the county this year. The percentage of infestation last year was 2 per cent of one-fourth of that found during the June survey. In a number of fields that were sown early, approximately one-fourth of the straw was damaged by the fly. One field that was sown in September, several days before the fly safe date, (Oct. 1st) showed 77 per cent infestation. While another field sowed by the same man on Oct. 2nd, following the fly safe date was alright. These results should be most convincing as to the merits in observing the fly free date. Pickaway-co has a large wheat acreage. Low wheat prices and unsatisfactory yields stress the importance of observing most economic practices in high quality seed, economic fertilization and certainly the observance of the fly free date in seeding. Hessian fly is one of the most hazardous crop insect enemies of our wheat acreage. Wheat seeded before the fly free date is very readily a victim and the growers pay a heavy toll instead of reaping a profit.

Sow wheat after Oct. 1st and swat the fly.

JAMES L. KILGALLEN
COLUMBUS, O., July 7.—Billy Burke, the courageous ex-caddy of Greenwich, Conn., who won the dramatic National Open golf championship in history after a 72-hole play-off with George Von Elm of Los Angeles, was hailed today as a worthy successor to the illustrious Bobby Jones whose crown he now wears. Burke's epic victory, the hardest ever earned in a major tournament, demonstrated beyond all doubt that he was the class of the field of 150 entrants who so hopefully started out last Thursday in quest of the glory that goes with the winning of a National Open. He had to have class to conquer a field that included Von Elm, Leo Diegel, Bill Mehlhorn, Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Whiffy Cox, MacDonald Smith, Mortie Dutra, El Espinoza, and Johnny Farrell. To say nothing of the foreign stars who fell by the wayside.

Many a year will pass before the pros in their locker rooms, the sport writers and the run of nine golfers cease to discuss the sensational 72-hole play-off that Burke was forced to go through to settle his right to the crown. It was something that never has happened before and probably will never happen again.

Burke rose to the heights when he ultimately conquered Von Elm by the slim margin of one stroke yesterday evening in the second 36-hole play over battled-scarred Inverness. They had been tied at the end of the regulation 72-hole of championship play at 292 each, two strokes ahead of Leo Diegel.

They played a 36-hole play-off Sunday and when they holed out at the final green they were deadlocked at 149. So yesterday they started their second 36-hole play-off and the match had to go to the thirty-sixth hole before the issue was decided, with Burke turning in a card of 148 and Von Elm 149.

When Burke and Von Elm shook hands on that last green Burke had a grand total of 589 strokes for 144 holes, and Von Elm 590. No two golfers in all history had staged such a close and unrelenting battle.

Burke's game was a trifle more consistent than Von Elm's. The latter was brilliant but erratic at times. Burke recorded only three sixes throughout the entire championship. He played steady and brainy golf and his poise was superb. Von Elm was decidedly more temperamental but that could be well understood, considering the tremendous pressure the two men were under.

Unstinted credit must be accorded Von Elm. He was superb in defeat. He demonstrated he is one of the best "money players" in the game by three sterling performances, namely: first, when he shot a birdie 3 Saturday afternoon to tie Burke at 292, second, when he shot four successive birdies on Sunday to stay in the running in the first 36-hole play-off and third, when, on the final green Sunday afternoon he shot a birdie to tie Burke with 149 and force the playing of another 36-hole round.

FAST FINISH HELPS CARDS

Come From Behind To Defeat Cubs; Brooklyn Falls Before Elliott.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Storm clouds in the path of the St. Louis Cardinals started to break up today and it began to look like John McGraw and Wilbert Robinson will change their shirts several times before the Red Birds are headed, if at all.

The Cards soon swung to Sportsman's Park and as they generally do very well at home, midsummer's madness is quite likely to see them still pushing the dust over the in-and-out Giants and Robins.

The National League champions showed some of the fighting spirit that got them that way, when they staged a Garrison finish Monday to overcome the collapsible Cubs in the ninth and win, 6 to 5. The victory gave St. Louis a four-game lead over New York.

When the final inning opened, Adams, the infielder the Cubs got rid of for no good reason, coaxed a walk off Bob Smith, who managed to dispose of the next two batters. Two men out, then, and the Bruins had the old ball game won, 5 to 4. But Collins, Cardinal first baseman, doubled to center, scoring the ex-Cub, Adams, and Roettger settled the thing then and there by whacking another double to left, scoring Collins.

Junho Jim Elliott, a Brooklyn castoff pitcher, humbled his former teammates, Philadelphia setting the Robins on their heels, 5 to 3. Elliott gave his old pals only six hits and homers by Buzz Arlett and Lee helped him on the offensive. It was Elliott's 11th triumph this season and his fourth over Brooklyn.

Joe Cronin was whooping it up on second base in the eighth inning when the Washington-Philadelphia game was called on account of rain with the score 0 to 0, and Hadley and Walberg in a hot hurling setto. The tie left the Senators four and a half games back of the A's.

There are so many things affecting our lives directly and indirectly that if we were to stop and think about it all we would have time for nothing else and would worry ourselves to death.

For instance, it is said that the present economic depression is caused by under-consumption, over-production, troubles in India, women in industry, tariff discrimination, short skirts leading to a textile crisis, speculation, displaced brewery workers, coffee control in Brazil, birth control in France, sugar over-production in Cuba, emotional instability among the younger generation, excessive wheat acreage, divorce rate increase involving heavy alimony expenditures, motor trucks, excessive amortization of income, and enough other reasons to fill a good-sized book.

You simply can't ignore it all out, unless you know of The City Loan. Everything is cash then—and The City Loan improves on acquaintance.

WILLAMAN REMAINS ON HIS GRID WORK

COLUMBUS, O.—While others go on vacations, Sam Willaman, Ohio State university football coach, stays here—and works.

Although Sam usually hies away to a summer camp he owns, this summer he is staying in town, and all his time is spent in mapping out Ohio State's football program for next fall.

While Sam has not been officially hired for next year, there now seems to be little doubt but that he will be re-appointed. As far as can be determined, his employers all are well satisfied with his work and convinced that he will be able to even a better job next fall.

Willaman bases his principal hopes for next season on changes he expects to make in the backfield. His line will be torn to pieces with the loss of Wesley Fessler and Dick Larkins, and the entire front barrier will have to be rebuilt. One of his stars is expected to be "Stew" Holcomb, the Erie, Pa., back who recently was elected captain of the team.

WHAT OF FESLER?

COLUMBUS, O.—Consider the case of the widely-traveled Wesley Fessler.

Not long ago the former Ohio State university all-American football star signed a contract with the Columbus American association baseball team. True, that wasn't much traveling, since he was already residing here in a fraternity house.

Soon after, however, it was announced that he had been farmed out to the Houston team in the Texas league, and so he packed a bag and started for the Rio Grande country.

After a short stay there he learned that he was to move again. He came back to Columbus. After watching the Houston team play one game, he was moved again.

Leaving Columbus, he went to Danville in the Three-Eye league. How long he will stay there nobody knows.

Inasmuch as Columbus, Houston and Danville properties all belong to the St. Louis Cardinals, Fessler is busy inquiring about other Card holdings in an attempt to learn that his next stop will be.

SEATTLE July 7

A second forced landing of the trimotored refueling plane caused another postponement today of the Fort Worth-Seattle-Tokyo flight planned by Reginald L. Robbins and H. S. Jones.

The refueling ship which is to fill the Pacific flight craft over Fairbanks and Nome, Alaska, left Hazelton, B. C., before noon yesterday and was forced down at Telegraph Creek, late in the afternoon. Previously it landed at Anyox B. C.

Until the refuel ship gets safely into Fairbanks the Fort Worth will not take the air," Robbins said.

TIGHT GAME ENDS IN ROUT AS GROCERS DEFEAT COCA COLA 9

Score of 2-1 in Five Innings Becomes 17-7 in Nine Innings; Groceryboys Count Nine Times in Sixth Frame; Kline Socks Two Doubles and Home Run.

A recreation ball game that was hotly contested for five innings with the score being only 2-1, ended in a rout at Utilities field Monday night. The Independent Grocers began their quest for second half honors when they defeated the Coca Cola 17-7.

For five innings the game was as tight an encounter as has been staged in the "red" loop this season. Then the balloon went up and the Coca Cola team went with it. Nine runs were scored by the Grocers in the sixth frame. Several hits went through the infield. Then Grocer hitters began dropping the leather between the infield and the outfielders with the result that plenty more base hits were tallied. The Grocers were finally extinguished after nearly every batter had stepped to the plate twice.

The Coca Colas scored once in the seventh and four more in the eighth, but to make things more certain the Grocers stepped out in the eighth to score five times more.

Heavy hitting featured the contest with the Grocers gaining most of the honors. Howard White, Circleville Oil pitcher, tossed them over for the Grocers, and hit safely four times, one a double. Timmy Kline registered three hits, two doubles and one home run; George Brungs, Red Men infielder, played third for the Grocers and

PREVENT HIM!

Flies are carriers of diseases and a menace of human health and welfare. They live and breed around the filthiest places—such as pit privies, garbage cans, dumping places, dirt and rubbish, and then visit our homes, kitchens and dining rooms, and share our foods. They pick up on their feet and wings germs and filth and carry it along to our homes and kitchens, deposit these germs on our foods and drinks, and transmit to us different disease such as typhoid fever, intestinal diarrhoeas, tuberculosis and contagious infectious diseases. As you look around, you will see flies roaming everywhere—in the spittoons, and garbage cans, filthy and dirty places—and immediately after, you see them on your hands or forehead, face, and every other part that they can land. They have no consideration for anybody nor anything, they make themselves at home whether they are welcome or not.

How often are we disgusted when we sit down at the lunch counter in a nice clean restaurant, everything is so inviting, aesthetically and in and behind, all of a sudden we see a fly land on our coffee, and we get disgusted, our appetite is gone and we feel like getting up in disgust. All this could be avoided by proper prevention. We can prevent them from hatching by swatting the first fly of the season. Science tells us that it takes 10 days for a fly to hatch, and takes 1 to 15 days for the female fly to lay eggs, thus the generation of the fly family is from 21 to 25 days. Thus at each 25 days there is a new crop of flies, which could have been prevented by proper preventative measures.

SEARS SAYS BOOZE USE IS DECLINING

COLUMBUS, O., July 7.—"The public has learned to have a good time without booze," says who?

Says State Prohibition Commissioner Clarence D. Sears. Commissioner Sears ventured that bit of opinion today after checking up on the holiday reports of state inspectors which showed an unusual scarcity of liquor arrests for July 4 and July 5.

Liquor disturbances both Saturday and Sunday were rare, the commissioner said, adding that obedience to the prohibition amendment is becoming more general throughout the state.

OHIO BANDITS TAKE JEWELRY

Daring Pair Smash Window of Springfield Store, Escape in Two Minutes.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 7.—With lightning-like rapidity, two bandits today smashed a heavy plate glass window of the Hoffman Green jewelry store here, seized valuables worth approximately $5,000 and escaped in an automobile.

The robbery took place all within a brief two minutes according to police records. An automatic alarm went off when the plate glass window was broken at 4:14 a. m. Police arrived at the scene two minutes later at 4:16 just to see the bandits speeding south.

Police gave chase to the bandits but lost the trail.

Following an investigation at the jewelry store authorities were unable to determine what the bandits had used to smash the window.

GROUP TO DISCUSS PICKAWAY BRIDGE

County commissioners, representatives of the city, and County Engineer J. Howard Sweetman will meet with members of the state highway department at 2 p. m. Wednesday to discuss plans and arrangements for constructing a new cement bridge over Hargus Creek on N. Pickaway-st.

The plans for the bridge were completed sometime ago by County Engineer Sweetman and were officially O. K'ed by the state highway department.

A new bridge at this site has been talked of for several years, and if it is constructed will add much improvement to the street, in addition to aiding the drive to Berger Hospital.

HESSIAN FLY IS NOW ON WARPATH

The June insect survey for Pickaway-co shows that wheat growers throughout the county must follow the precaution of observing the fly safe date if serious damage by Hessian fly is to be averted. The survey which was made by close examination of a number of wheat fields taken in representative sections of the county, showed that the Hessian fly infestation averaged 8 per cent for the county this year. The percentage of infestation last year was 2 per cent of one-fourth of that found during the June survey. In a number of fields that were sown early, approximately one-fourth of the straw was damaged by the fly. One field that was sown in September, several days before the fly safe date, (Oct. 1st) showed 77 per cent infestation. While another field sowed by the same man on Oct. 2nd, following the fly safe date was alright. These results should be most convincing as to the merits in observing the fly free date. Pickaway-co has a large wheat acreage. Low wheat prices and unsatisfactory yields stress the importance of observing most economic practices in high quality seed, economic fertilization and certainly the observance of the fly free date in seeding. Hessian fly is one of the most hazardous crop enemies of our wheat acreage. Wheat seeded before the fly free date is very readily a victim and the growers pay a heavy toll instead of reaping a profit.

Sow wheat after Oct. 1st and swat the fly.

LOW PRICE PROSPECT MAKES WHEAT CHEAP FEED FOR HOGS

By H. STANLEY LEWIS

The low price prospect for wheat and the inferior quality of the crop make wheat a cheap hog feed source.

The following is a summary of results obtained by the Ohio Experiment Station which may be used as a guide by Pickaway-co hog feeders: In six tests made by W. L. Robinson, in charge of swine investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station, corn and ground wheat were compared for 62 pound pigs, using a supplement with both feeds. The pigs fed wheat were ready for market two weeks earlier than those fed corn, and the wheat was worth 4.8 per cent more a pound than the corn.

In six other tests, with 105 pounds shots, there was no difference in the rapidity of the gains and the ground wheat was worth 3.2 per cent less a pound than the corn.

Ground wheat is preferable to whole wheat for pigs. Mr. Robinson states that, in experiments comparing the two, the pigs given ground wheat not only gained more rapidly and were ready for market two weeks earlier, but required 11.7 per cent less feed per unit of gain than those given whole wheat. Even with 60 cent wheat the advantage of grinding aside from the faster growth, amounted to 7.2 cents a bushel, or a net saving of 15 cents on each 100 pounds of grain in live weight. With wheat at $1.05 the saving would be 12.6 cents a bushel, or 57 cents per 100 pounds of increase in live weight. Coarse grinding is desirable. If ground too fine wheat tends to form a sticky mass in the animal's mouth. If fine grinding is practiced, using a little oats or corn with the wheat is helpful in overcoming the stickiness. Otherwise, there is no advantage from feeding corn or other grains with wheat.

Soaking wheat for hogs is sometimes practiced. Experiments comparing dry with soaked whole wheat showed that on the average, no wheat was saved by soaking. Nor was there any benefit from soaking after it was ground. Moistening ground wheat when the pigs were hand-fed was apparently advisable. The limited data available indicate that self feeding dry ground wheat is as satisfactory as feeding moistened ground wheat twice daily. Pigs on forage, given wheat, need approximately 8, 6, and 4 percent of tankage, or its equivalent in other protein feeds, in their ration while weighing less than 75, between 75 and 125, and over 125 pounds, respectively. Those of the same weight and not getting forage need approximately 14.10 and 6 percent, respectively.

ALFALFA FIELD DAY IS PLANNED

Methods of producing profitable yields of alfalfa will be thrown in the limelight when hundreds of Ohio farmers attend the first alfalfa field day to be held in Ohio, according to E. P. Reed, specialist in soils and farm crops at the Ohio State University, who says that the field day will be held on July 23 at the emergency airport filed, near Delta, Fulton County.

Visitors attending alfalfa field day will inspect the exhibits and demonstrations dealing with hay making machinery, grades of alfalfa hay, alfalfa in the field, and alfalfa fertilizer plots. Considerable attention will be devoted to the best time to window or rake alfalfa, and to the field grading of this legume which involves the result obtained by cutting alfalfa at different stages. Visitors will also see the advantages of swath cured, window cured, combined swath and window cured, and cock cured alfalfa hay, the reasons for using different sized windrows raked with side delivery and dump rake, and the best method of handling wet hay and of loading hay.

A representative of the United States Department of Markets will be present to grade hay.

All the field operations for making alfalfa hay will be demonstrated and an exhibit of haymaking equipment will be presented throughout the entire day, July 23.

Reed states. Among the departments at the state university cooperating in the alfalfa field day are: agricultural engineering, animal husbandry, rural economics, farm crops and soils, plant pathology, and entomology.

Peace can never be except as it is founded on justice. Doing nothing is doing ill.

TEST CASE IS UP

LONDON, O., July 7.—A test case to determine whether a new system of handling cash during dog races at the West Jefferson Kennel Club is legal was assured today following the entering of a not guilty plea to gambling charges by Perry Van Schoik, manager of the club.

Van Schoik waived grand jury action and pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing. He said he welcomed the trial and believed the system now in use, by which only owners and co-owners of dogs are permitted to buy tickets, is within the law.

RESPIRE EXPECTED

A probable week's respite from the oppressive heat which has smothered Circleville the past several weeks is promised by Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weatherman. Winds which have been blowing from the northwest promise the greatest amount of relief.

Tuesday is expected to be cooler than the last two days, which were marked by moderate temperatures, due to increasing cloudiness. The mercury Monday did not go higher than 90 degrees, according to Dr. Clarke. This is a descent from the temperatures reported last week.

Local residents were able to sleep peacefully Monday night as the mercury stayed between the 65 and 70 degree mark, with the low temperature recorded at 62 degrees.

PROTEST ATTACK

NANKING, China, July 7.—Protesting against yesterday's attack on Chinese residents of Korea in which 80 persons were killed, the Nanking government today dispatched a strong note of indignation to the Japanese government.

Anti-Chinese demonstrations which started Sunday at Korea were reported to be spreading rapidly throughout the land.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Mrs. Myrtle Good, 411 E. Mount-st., underwent a minor operation at Berger hospital Tuesday.

ACTRESS STILL REPORTED LOST

NEW YORK, July 7.—After hours of search, police today had failed to locate the missing actress, Evelyn Wilson, or discover how she dropped from sight. The 23 year old stage beauty disappeared early Sunday. Friends said she had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom.

Police said that actress might have disappeared voluntarily as the result of the recent breaking of her engagement to marry Joseph Sheeran, a New York business man.

HUNT TREASURE OF SWINDLER

CHICAGO, July 7.—Burned treasure to the amount of $3,000,000 was sought today in downtown banks where John "Jake the Barber" Factor is believed by authorities have cached it.

The search for gold was legally launched when Attorney John H. S. Lee representing Arthur Travis Sabre, one of Factor's alleged British victims, filed an amended bill of complaint in the United States district court.

sake of which they insisted that the German unpostponable reparations payments be continued.

This government obtained from the French, however, a concession whereby Germany would borrow back from the bank of international settlements the $31,000,000 she would thus pay in during the holiday.

In the same way, an obstacle involving the payments in kind, the contracts for which France insisted could be maintained, was removed. France agreed to a proposal that Germany borrow back the cash equivalent.

There were many details where in the Young plan caused some difficulty because of their complicated nature, but without importance as to principle. These will be taken care of by the experts committee.

Among these questions are the matter of the guarantee deposit of $125,000,000 required of France under the Young plan in the event of a moratorium, which France wanted to be released from if she agreed to Mr. Hoover's plan. Details of how this may be avoided will be worked out by the experts, as will that concerning the payments in kind. And there are a multitude of less important matters of conflict.

DELAY PAYMENTS

All the nations owing war debts to the United States will fund their suspended payments over a period of twelve years, but no payments shall be made until one year after the holiday is over. Germany likewise funds her suspended payments on the same terms.

No decision had been made early today as to the method of formally promulgating the holiday, whether by an exchange of notes or some other means. This is considered of no importance, however.

It will be necessary for France and her former allies, consignatories of the Young plan, to hold a meeting among themselves on the details of the experts' job. This government has no interest in this, now that France has agreed that what ever the experts do will be done in the spirit of the Hoover holiday principle.

The president's announcement of the "accord in principle" came at the close of a day crowned with activity here and in Paris.

His face was wreathed in a broad smile when reporters filed into his office in response to his summons.

His summons to the reporters came shortly after a lengthy conference with Acting Secretary of State Castle and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Mills. Senator David A. Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, was in and out of the president's office during this conference.

It was learned later that Mellon had dictated the details of the arrangement he made with Premier Laval on the basis of a new and simplified formula cabled to Paris by the president Sunday night.

STATEMENT READ

The president's statement read: "I am glad to announce that the American proposal for one year's postponement of all intergovernmental debts and reparations has now been accepted in principle by all of the important creditor governments. The terms of the acceptance by the French government are, of course, subject to the approval of the other interested powers, for whom the American government naturally cannot that one of these causes is the burdens imposed and the tears aroused by competitive armament.

"Contemplation of the past few weeks should bring a realization that we must find relief from these fundamental burdens which today amount to several times the amount of intergovernmental debts."

"The American part of the plan is, of course, subject to the approval by Congress, but I have received the individual assurances of support from a very large majority of the members of both senate and house, irrespective of political affiliations."

"The acceptance of this proposal has meant sacrifices by the American people and by the former allied governments, who are with all others suffering from world-wide depression and deficits in governmental budgets. The economic load most seriously oppressing the people of Germany and central Europe will be immensely lightened."

"While the plan is particularly aimed to economic relief, yet economic relief means the swinging of men's minds from fear to confidence, the swinging of nations from the apprehension of disorder and governmental collapse to hope and confidence of the future."

It means tangible aid to unemployment and agriculture.

"The almost unanimous support in the United States is again profound evidence of the sincere humanity of the American people. And in this year, devoted to economic upbuilding, the world has need of solemn thought on the cause which have contributed to the depression I need not repeat

News of Homes and Home Folks

Published by STEVENSON'S

VOL. 3. NO. 26.

Tuesday, July 7, 1931.

And some folks think that it'll cost them too much to operate. Just read this letter and be convinced that you simply cannot afford NOT to pass up this modern convenience.

Peekles, Ohio, June 29, 1931.
Mr. H. G. Stevenson,
Circleville, Ohio.

With reference to Pyrofax Gas Services, we cannot speak too highly for it. We have several outfits in operation and every user is more than pleased with it. If an attempt were made to remove the outfit, and substitute oil or gasoline in its place, you would have an impossible task. It is impossible to even think of comparing the fuels from the standpoint of convenience and safety. The Board of Fire Underwriters rate Pyrofax as "A," kerosene burning cooking devices as "B," and gasoline cook stoves as "C."

Comparison of the cost of operation is arrived at on a basis of B. T. U's (meaning, British Thermal Unit, or that amount of heat that is required to heat one pound of water one degree) delivered on cooking vessel. (Pyrofax has 2,700 B. T. U's while our natural gas contains about 1,000).

Mr. O. A. Tene's outfit at Sinking Springs, Ohio, was installed Nov. 22, 1930, and the second tank was not turned on until April 10, at a total cost of $14. (At the present price of Pyrofax, Mr. Tene's average cost would have been but 60c per week). In our own home, the first year's cost of operation was $28.00, and may we state that Pyrofax is the only means of cooking and is not supplemented by any other cooking device. A safe estimate to give a prospective customer is $1.00 per week for a family of three, and using a stove with an insulated oven.

We also have many other outfits operating on a very economical basis and, in our opinion, it is the greatest development in household mechanics since the invention of the conventional coal stove.

We trust that this has answered your question regarding the satisfaction of Pyrofax as a cooking fuel. If there is any other point that we may be able to clear up, kindly write as Pyrofax has been more than satisfactory in a great many ways. We are looking forward with pleasure to the opportunity of meeting you personally.

Very truly yours,
The J. N. Nixon Furniture Co.,
Per I. H. Weaver.

This is a lot of space to devote to Pyrofax gas in our little RTT but we believe that it is worthy of publication. We want to spike the rumor that this wonderful cooking fuel "costs more to operate than we tell the customers." Mr. Weaver, having had several years of experience, knows whereof he speaks. So do Mrs. White, Mrs. Brown, and Mrs. Churtz, all residing out west of Circleville.

Looking for Grandma's glasses isn't the job it used to be. Nowadays she leaves them right where she empties them.

Just a week ago today we sold one of our farmer friends a large ice refrigerator. It takes 150 lbs. of ice. We mention this to remind the folks that you can still secure large ice refrigerators.

Here's your opportunity to get a large Florence kerosene cook stove at a bargain—a real honest-to-gosh bargain. A check-up shows that we have entirely too many four-burner stoves. So to clean them out, we're offering them at the price of a three-burner. Three of the burners are of the regular size, but the fourth one is EXTRA LARGE. In fact, it gives off as much heat as two ordinary burners. This will deliver as much heat as other five burner stoves, but we're only asking the price of a three burner stove. And right now in the harvest season, with fruit and vegetable canning, is the time that a housewife needs an oil stove, if she ever needs one. As every one knows, the FLORENCE is a standard make that has been in use for many years. There's no guess work about buying a FLORENCE—it'll give satisfaction.

For the benefit of the users of FLORENCE and ALCAZAR oil stoves, as well as many other oil stoves using KEROGAS wicks, let us say that kinders and wicks may be had at this store.

The hot weather of the past several days and nights caused many folks to dig up their cots and sleep down stairs. We had a run on cot pads, but we've just received a new stock.

Here's a few slips taken from the papers of this community (maybe)

"Wanted—Saleslady. Must be respectable until after Xmas."

"For Rent—Lovely furnished room in private family with bath or car line."

"Experienced salespeople wanted. Male or female. No other need apply."

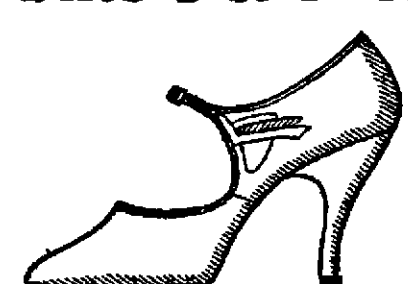

"For Sale—A folding bed by a lady that shuts up and looks like a piano"

We suppose that a man that offers blankets for sale during this hot spell should be taken out and shot at sunrise. However, we're going to take the risk of being shot. Right now, in spite of the torrid heat, we'll sell part wool blankets, size 80x90 (double), for the small sum of 45c each and 50c per week for eight weeks. Now then, you folks that feel that you just cannot lay out $4.45 for a large pair of good blankets, here's your opportunity to secure one on very easy terms. If you'll start in right away, you'll have the blanket paid for before you'll need it. We're taking contracts right now.

Yes, and we'll very soon be advising you to place your order for an Estate Heatrola for fall delivery. Buy it in July or August and get a TON OF COAL FREE OF CHARGE.

Sewing machine belts and needles for all makes of machines.

TEST CASE IS UP

LONDON, O., July 7—A test case to determine whether a new system of handling cash during dog races at the West Jefferson Kennel Club is legal was assured today following the entering of a not guilty plea to gambling charges by Perry Van Schoik, manager of the club. Van Schoik waived grand jury action and pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing. He said he welcomed the trial and believed the system now in use, by which only owners and co-owners of dogs are permitted to buy tickets, is within the law.

Any member of the family of Fred Watts, W. Mill-st., is invited to be a guest of The Herald at the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

RESPIRE EXPECTED

A probable week's respite from the oppressive heat which has smothered Circleville the past several weeks is promised by Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weatherman. Winds which have been blowing from the northwest promise the greatest amount of relief.

Tuesday is expected to be cooler than the last two days, which were marked by moderate temperatures, due to increasing cloudiness.

The mercury Monday did not go higher than 90 degrees, according to Dr. Clarke. This is a descent from the temperatures reported last week.

Local residents were able to sleep peacefully Monday night as the mercury stayed between the 65 and 70 degree mark, with the low temperature recorded at 62 degrees.

ACTRESS STILL REPORTED LOST

NEW YORK, July 7—After hours of search, police today had failed to locate the missing actress, Evelyn Wilson, or discover how she dropped from sight. The 23 year old stage beauty disappeared early Sunday. Friends said she had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom.

Police said that actress might have disappeared voluntarily as the result of the recent breaking of her engagement to marry Joseph Sheeran, a New York business man.

HUNT TREASURE OF SWINDLER

CHICAGO, July 7—Buried treasure to the amount of $3,000,000 was sought today in downtown banks where John "Jake the Barber" Factor is believed by authorities have caught it.

The search for gold was legally launched when Attorney John H. S. Lee representing Arthur Travis Sabar, one of Factor's alleged British victims, filed an amended bill of complaint in the United States district court.

HOOVER'S DEBT

sake of which they insisted that the German unpostponable reparations payments be continued.

This government obtained from the French, however, a concession whereby Germany would borrow back from the bank of international settlements the $131,000,000 she would thus pay in during the holiday.

In the same way, an obstacle involving the payments in kind, the contracts for which France insisted could be maintained, was removed. France agreed to a proposal that Germany borrow back the cash equivalent.

There were many details where in the Young plan caused some difficulty because of their complicated nature, but without importance as to principle. These will be taken care of by the experts committee.

Among these questions are the matter of the guarantee deposit of $125,000,000 required of France under the Young plan in the event of a moratorium, which France wanted to be released from if she agreed to Mr. Hoover's plan. Details of how this may be avoided will be worked out by the experts, as will that concerning the payments in kind. And there are a multitude of less important matters of conflict.

DELAY PAYMENTS

All the nations owing war debts to the United States will fund their suspended payments over a period of twelve years, but no payments shall be made until one year after the holiday is over. Germany likewise funds her suspended payments on the same terms.

No decision had been made early today as to the method of formally promulgating the holiday, whether by an exchange of notes or some other means. This is considered of no importance, however.

It will be necessary for France and her former allies, consignatories of the Young plan, to hold a meeting among themselves on the details of the experts' job. This government has no interest in this, now that France has agreed that what ever the experts do will be done in the spirit of the Hoover holiday principle.

The president's announcement of the "accord in principle" came at the close of a day crowned with activity here and in Paris.

His face was wreathed in a broad smile when reporters filed into his office in response to his summons.

His summons to the reporters came shortly after a lengthy conference with Acting Secretary of State Castle and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Mills. Senator David A. Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, was in and out of the president's office during this conference.

It was learned later that Mellon had dictated the details of the arrangement he made with Premier Laval on the basis of a new and simplified formula cabled to Paris by the president Sunday night.

STATEMENT READ

The president's statement read: "I am glad to announce that the American proposal for one year's postponement of all intergovernmental debts and reparations has now been accepted in principle by all of the important creditor governments. The terms of the acceptance by the French government are, of course, subject to the approval of the other interested powers, for whom the American government naturally cannot speak. Without going into technical terms, while certain payments are made by Germany for reparations account, the substance of the president's proposal is retained as the sums so paid are immediately released to Germany.

"The technical difficulties arising from many complicated international agreements, which involve the aggregate payment between governments of over $800,000,000 per annum are not in the course of solution by the good-will and earnest cooperation of governmental leaders everywhere.

"The American part of the plan is, of course, subject to the approval by Congress, but I have received the individual assurances of support from a very large majority of the members of both senate and house, irrespective of political affiliations.

"The acceptance of this proposal has meant sacrifices by the American people and by the former allied governments, who are with all others suffering from world-wide depression and deficits in governmental budgets. The economic load most seriously oppressing the people of Germany and central Europe will be immensely lightened.

"While the plan is particularly aimed to economic relief, yet economic relief means the swinging of men's minds from fear to confidence, the swinging of nations from the apprehension of disorder and governmental collapse to hope and confidence of the future.

It means tangible aid to unemployment and agriculture. "The almost unanimous support in the United States is again profound evidence of the sincere humanity of the American people. And in this year, devoted to economic upbuilding, the world has need of solemn thought on the cause which have contributed to the depression. I need not repeat that one of these causes is the burdens imposed and the fears aroused by competitive armament.

'Round The Town
News of Homes and Home Folks
Published by STEVENSON'S

VOL. 3. NO. 26. Tuesday, July 7, 1931.

And some folks think that it'll cost them too much to operate. Just read this letter and be convinced that you simply cannot afford NOT to pass up this modern convenience.

Peebles, Ohio, June 29, 1931.
Mr. H. G. Stevenson,
Circleville, Ohio.

Dear Sir:

With reference to Pyrofax Gas Service, we cannot speak too highly for it. We have several outfits in operation and every user is more than pleased with it. If an attempt were made to remove the outfit, and substitute oil or gasoline in its place, you would have an impossible task. It is impossible to even think of comparing the fuels from the standpoint of convenience and safety. The Board of Fire Underwriters rate Pyrofax as "A," kerosene burning cooking devices as "B," and gasoline cook stoves as "C."

Comparison of the cost of operation is arrived at on a basis of B. T. U's. (meaning, British Thermal Unit, or that amount of heat that is required to heat one pound of water one degree) delivered on cooking vessel. (Pyrofax has 2,700 B. T. U's. while our natural gas contains about 1,000).

Mr. O. A. Tener's outfit at Sinking Springs, Ohio, was installed Nov. 22, 1930, and the second tank was not turned on until April 10, at a total cost of $14. (At the present price of Pyrofax, Mr. Tener's average cost would have been but 90c per week). In our own home, the first year's cost of operation was $28.00, and may we state that Pyrofax is the only means of cooking and is not supplemented by any other cooking device. A safe estimate to give a prospective customer is $1.00 per week for a family of three, and using a stove with an insulated oven.

We also have many other outfits operating on a very economical basis and, in our opinion, it is the greatest development in household mechanics since the invention of the conventional coal stove.

We trust that this has answered

your question regarding the satisfaction of Pyrofax as a cooking fuel. If there is any other point that we may be able to clear up, kindly write as Pyrofax has been more than satisfactory in a great many ways. We are looking forward with pleasure to the opportunity of meeting you personally. Very truly yours,

The J. N. Nixon Furniture Co.,
Per I. H. Weaver.

This is a lot of space to devote to Pyrofax gas in our little RTT but we believe that it is worthy of publication. We want to spike the rumor that this wonderful cooking fuel "costs more to operate than we tell the customers." Mr. Weaver, having had several years of experience, knows whereof he speaks. So do Mrs. White, Mrs. Brown, and Mrs. Churchill, all residing out west of Circleville.

Looking for Grandma's glasses isn't the job it used to be. Nowadays she leaves them right where she empties them.

Just a week ago today we sold one of our former friends a large ice refrigerator. It takes 150 lbs. of ice. We mention this to remind the folks that you can still secure large ice refrigerators.

Here's your opportunity to get a large Florence kerosene cook stove at a bargain—a real honest-to-gosh bargain. A check-up shows that we have entirely too many four-burner stoves. So, to clean them out, we're offering them at the price of a three-burner. Three of the burners are of the regular size, but the fourth one is EXTRA LARGE. In fact, it gives off as much heat as two ordinary burners. This will deliver as much heat as other five burner stoves, but we're only asking the price of a three burner stove. And right now, in the harvest season, with fruit and vegetable canning, is the time that a housewife needs an oil stove, if she ever needs one. As every one knows, the FLORENCE is a standard make that has been in use for many years. There's no guess work about buying a FLORENCE—it'll give satisfaction.

For the benefit of the users of FLORENCE and ALCAZAR oil stoves, as well as many other oil stoves using KEROGAS wicks, let us say that kindlers and wicks may be had at this store.

The hot weather of the past several days and nights caused many folks to dig up their coats and sleep down stairs. We had a run on cot pads, but we've just received a new stock.

Here's a few slips taken from the papers of this community (maybe).

"Wanted—Saleslady. Must be respectable until after Xmas."

"For Rent—Lovely furnished room in private family with bath on car line."

"Experienced salespeople wanted. Male or female. No other need apply."

"For Sale—A folding bed by a lady that shuts up and looks like a piano."

We suppose that a man that offers blankets for sale during this hot spell should be taken out and shot at sun-rise. However, we're going to take the risk of being shot. Right now, in spite of the torrid heat, we'll sell part wool blankets, size 80x90 (double), for the small sum of 45c down and 50c per week for eight weeks.
